Baseball Field in Park Here Is To Be Ready for Play Soon

TRUCKS AND GRADERS will soon be replaced by pitchers and batters at the municipal park along Millikan Avenue. "Play ball!" This familiar cry will be ringing out of the public park on Oakland Avenue any day now. The way things are going, according to Park Board Chairman Richard P. Waters, the baseball field there should be in shape "real soon."

Grading, scalping and filling are all being done at the park to bring the diamond into shape. A ramp is being graded and gravelled for the entrance into the park from Oakland Avenue. Work, although not finished yet, is progressing rapidly and soon the only thing left to install will be a baseball game.

The city grader started work last Friday morning on the ramp into the park near the Paint Creek bridge. Scalping operations started at the same time and when this is completed, a clay-sand mixture will be applied to form a firm and smooth infield surface.

Leagues and pick-up games will be able to use the park after it's finished. The leagues will work out their schedules among themselves. Although no one has made definite arrangements yet, it is reported that the Babe Ruth League for boys has its eye on the park for a playing field.

The ball park will be regulation 90-foot square size, it is said. A backstop will be going up in a few days, Waters said. Rest rooms will be installed right away and, hopefully, temporary bleachers will be obtained and put up.

that has been Water's self-described "hobby" for several years. As head of the park board, he has taken the Oakland Avenue area and guided its development from an old creek bottom pasture to its present condition.

Filling of the lowland to the present level started several years ago, Waters said. Some seven or eight thousand tons of fill have been dumped there, he said.

City, county—and even state—vehicles and men have worked on the operation. Waters called it a

USS Saratoga Bigger Than Any Ship Afloat

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Navy today commissioned its mightiest ship yet—the aircraft carrier USS Saratoga.

She's bigger, faster and more powerful than any ocean fighting vessel afloat.

If she were turned on end, she'd reach the 80th floor of the Empire State Building. She's wide enough to set two of the world's largest passenger liners side-by-side on her deck.

More than three years in the building, the Saratoga joined the fleet today in a blaze of ceremony, music and newly hoisted flags, with fighter squadrons sweeping overhead.

Federal and state notables, including Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas, took part in the commissioning on the huge flight deck of the ship, berthed at Brooklyn's naval yard.

THE SARATOGA, bearer of an illustrious name in American naval history, is the second ship to be launched of the class of the carrier USS Forrestal, but she embodies advances over her sister ship.

Both are 60,000-ton vessels, larger than any other fighting ships, including the biggest, 45,000-ton battleships.

The Saratoga's 250,000-horsepower engines have the propulsion force about the equivalent of 100 train locomotives. Although her top speed in secret, she'll cruise at an average of about 34 knots or a little over 38 miles an hour.

She's about five city blocks long, and about a block 252 feet wide, with a flight deck more than four acres in size.

Her two acres of hangar space for the some 100 planes she'll carry bring the combined flight operations area to more than six acres.

The entire population of a city of 40,000 could stand on her decks. In height, from keel to top mast, the carrier rises to the equivalent of a 25-story building. She'll carry a crew of about 3,800 men.

Meter Collector Held By Detectives

CLEVELAND (AP)—Detective Chief James E. McArthur says a parking meter coin collector who admitted stealing the city's nickels will be charged with embezzlement.

The collector, identified as Julius J. Forro, 35, was arrested as he was getting into his automobile at the rear of City Hall. Police said a paper bag he was carrying contained 700 nickels and a total of 608 nickels were found in two more bags in his car.

A search of Forro's home turned up 135 pounds of nickels, estimated to be worth more than $1,000.

Hammaraskjold Winding Up Egyptian Talks

U. N. Peacemaker Sees Success In Gaining Lull In Hostilities

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold wrapped up the first stage of his peace talks with Egyptian officials today as an uneasy quiet held border.

Hammarskjold conferred for 30 minutes this morning with Egyptian Premier Nasser and talked for an hour with Foreign Minister Fazi.

The secretary was accompanied to the talks by U. N. truce chief Maj. Gen. Burns and two U. N. experts, Henri Vigier and John Ridman. He was to return to his temporary headquarters in Beirut later today.

The secretary's mission appeared to have succeeded in clamping at least a temporary lid on the smoldering situation.

Both Israel and Egypt have given Hammarskjold written assurances they will refrain from hostile acts. The pledges were followed by a brief aerial dog fight and an exchange of border fire Thursday. Then quiet prevailed.

EGYPT WAS said to have given further assurances that she has pulled Arab commandos out of Israel. Israel accused the raiders of killing 14.

Hammarskjold, who is expected to spend a month conferring with Arab and Israeli leaders, is scheduled to push on to Israel Monday after a weekend of staff work at Beirut.

The secretary has sent Premier David Ben-Gurion a message asking further assurance that Israel had given orders to quit shooting across the border. He said Egypt had promised to issue such orders.

Hammarskjold is expected to take to Israel a plan to pull troops of both sides about one third of a mile back from the border.

Nasser originated the idea last summer and it received endorsement from the U. N. Security Council. Unconfirmed Cairo reports said Israeli had now agreed in principle.

One of the most dangerous aspects of the frontier situation in the opinion of many has been the heavy concentration of troops over the past six months.

It has been estimated that Egypt now has 60 per cent of its armed force in the eastern Sinai Desert near the Israeli frontier. There have been reports of a similar buildup on the Israeli side.

Air Force Says Lockbourne Fund Partly For Missiles

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Air Force said today the $4,952,000 appropriation for the "Lockbourne Fund" for construction work at Lockbourne Air Base included funds for a Talos-equipped ground-to-air guided missile program.

But the Air Force would not say how much of the overall appropriation, still to be approved by the Senate, is earmarked for the Talos project. Aides of the House committee which handled the military works bill reported they could not give any details because it is classified information.

The appropriation bill itself listed the money for operational and training, maintenance, housing and community facilities, and land acquisition at Lockbourne.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Utah's Gov. J. Bracken Lee said yesterday he got a letter from Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey telling him he had better pay his federal income tax by Monday.

But Lee said he wouldn't.

He said Humphrey wrote him that if he didn't, then the Internal Revenue Service would "proceed in the usual manner" to collect the taxes by filing a lien and levying on assets.

"I wrote him back," said Lee, "asking him to clarify what this 'usual manner' is."

"I want to know if he means that they'll just move in and confiscate property and money without due process, like they've done in the past at times, or if they'll have a court order."

Lee, a Republican, withheld part of his income tax payment when he filed his return Jan. 13—on that portion of his income above his $10,000 governor's salary. He would not say how much that was.

HE SAID HE wants to test the constitutionality of the tax itself, and the use of tax money for foreign aid.

Humphrey, in his letter, said he has legal advice that Lee's action would not serve as grounds for such a test case.

"My counsel has advised me," wrote Humphrey, "that the Supreme Court, in the case of Frothingham vs. Mellon (1923), rejected a taxpayer's attempt to object to congressional appropriations on the grounds that tax payments were being used for purposes claimed by the taxpayer to be unconstitutional."

Lee said he and his attorneys have studied this case, too, but still want to get into court.

That's why, said the governor, he wants to know more specifically what the government would do in its "usual manner" of collecting the delinquent tax.

Completing his second term as governor, Lee plans to announce his political intentions Sunday, when income taxes are due.

"That seems to me to be as appropriate time as any," he said.

Home Demonstration Clubs Hold Achievement Day Program Here

Everything from preserved fruits to a shrunken human head was on display at Friday afternoon's achievement day session of the Fayette County home demonstration clubs.

Some 200 persons went to the Dayton Power and Light Co. auditorium to see exhibits which—with one exception—were projects completed by members of the county's 22 home demonstration clubs.

The exception, the shrunken

head, was displayed by the speaker, Thomas Stickle, Stickle has just returned from Ecuador where he was an exchange student.

His talk included an outline of the customs of Ecuadorian natives, an exhibit of hand-woven native garments, a demonstration of a native dance and an explanation of how to shrink heads—"in case you want to know how it's done."

A highlight of the session was installation of officers to represent the countywide home demonstration clubs.

Hillsboro Test Papers Now Being Graded

HILLSBORO (AP)—Only grading of placement tests now separates 19 Negro youngsters from long-disputed entry into the Beshter-Washington school here.

The tests, taken yesterday under state education department supervision, will determine what grades the pupils shall enter after nearly two years away from regular school classes.

The two examiners, Dr. Ray G. Wood and Glenn A. Rich, are slated to check the tests over the weekend and final results are expected Monday. It had been reported earlier that local school officials would grade the tests.

Mrs. Imogene Curtis, who with other Negro mothers has tutored the children during the dispute, said the students reported the tests were not too difficult.

Five of the 24 children who were kept out of school when the dispute started, did not take the tests. No explanation was given.

Re-entry of the youngsters into school will end long litigation.

Mothers of the children, aided by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, filed suit seeking to end alleged segregation.

The U. S. Supreme Court last week upheld an appellate court order for immediate integration of the 24 students.

The Hillsboro school board had maintained it intended to integrate pupils in elementary schools as soon as new facilities are completed next fall.

The meeting opened with a welcome by the outgoing president, Mrs. Herschell Hulett. Mrs. John Case offered devotions on the theme, "They Shall Renew Their Strength."

Group singing of "America, the Beautiful" was led by Mrs. Laverne Morgan, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Audrey Kessler.

County Agent W. W. He said that the drive is less than halfway to its goal with the drive all but ended.

Mrs. Ray Shoemaker and Mrs. Roy Young presented a skit on rugmaking, one of the major projects of the home demonstration clubs this year.

The program featured music by students at Washington C. H. High School. Janice Gillen played a piano solo and John Rhoad played a solo on the baritone saxophone to Kay Minshall's piano accompaniment.

State Examiner Reports on City

Three "Errors For Adjustment" Cited

Covering city records for the period from October 31, 1954 to Oct. 31, 1955, the report of State Examiner Charles W. Corbin has been filed with the city auditor, Miss Marie Melvin. A copy also was mailed to Solicitor William Junk.

There are no personal findings in the document and for the most parts officials were commended for their good work and also for their co-operation while the examination was underway.

Three "errors for adjustment" are mentioned in the report, one for $10 in favor of the gas tax fund; another for $792.73 in the auto license fund, and $5,739.29 in the gasoline tax fund.

The examiner points out that the above amounts were used from the auto license fund and gasoline tax fund to pay salaries at the city dump, and part of the salary of the city hall caretaker when they should have been used out of the general fund.

He lists the amounts as "errors for adjustment" under the city manager's department.

The examiner also challenged the employment of Fire Chief George Hall in the capacity of superintendent of the sewage disposal plant and quotes the law pertaining to employment of any city employee in another capacity for the city.

Records in various departments were found in good condition and department heads were complimented for their work.

GOP Party Boss Against Veto Action

President Huddling With Top Advisers On Agriculture, Economy

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Pressure was building up on all sides of President Eisenhower today as he grappled with the problem of what to do with the politically significant farm bill.

Today found the President thrashing out the problem with his chief agricultural and economic advisers at a conference at his vacation headquarters here.

Some farm state Republicans, anxious that Eisenhower allow the bill to become law despite his outspoken opposition to key parts of it, reportedly had gained the backing of Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall.

There were indications Eisenhower may act on the bill next week when he returns to Washington. Some reports said he would veto it. But the Little White House gave no hint of what the President might do. He has said the measure does not meet the test of a good bill.

WHAT EISENHOWER finally decides, whether to sign the bill, veto it or let it become law without his signature, is likely to have far-reaching impact in this national election year when Democrats are making a prime issue of continued depressed farm income.

As far as political expediency is concerned, the President could allow the bill to become law without his signature and still be in a position to speak against it during the campaign.

The Constitution gives the President 10 days (Sunday excluded) to sign or veto a bill after it reaches him. If he does not act within that time, the bill becomes law automatically if Congress is still in session. The bill was delivered to the White House Thursday, and Eisenhower thus has until midnight April 24 to act.

Eisenhower huddled today with Secretary of Agriculture Benson and Gabriel Hauge, his top economic adviser, along with other officials.

In Pittsburgh yesterday, Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, described the farm bill as "utterly bad." He urged the President to veto it. After that, Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, described the farm bill as "utterly bad."

He urged the President to veto it. After that, Shuman said, Congress "should forget the political setting and try to write a workable farm bill."

Charles Brannan, a former secretary of agriculture in the Truman cabinet, declared that if Eisenhower signs the bill "as he should," it will help not only the farmers, but all citizens connected in any way with food output.

Sources in Washington quoted Hall as telling some members of Congress he believes a veto would be a political "mistake."

However, Hall was said to be offering little hope he could influence Eisenhower's decision in this matter.

Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) and Chairman Cooley (D-NC) of the House Agriculture Committee were among those urging that the bill be signed.

In Des Moines, Gov. Leo Hoegh of Iowa said he and the GOP governors of Kansas, Nebraska, and South Dakota have arranged tentatively to carry to the President on Monday a personal appeal to sign the bill.

THE SARATOGA, bearer of an illustrious name in American naval history, is the second ship to be launched of the class of the carrier U.S.S. Forrestal, but she embodies advances over her sister ship.

Both are 60,000-ton vessels, larger than any other fighting ships, including the biggest, 45,000-ton battleships.

The Saratoga's 250,000-horsepower engines have the propulsion force about the equivalent of 100 train locomotives. Although her top speed in secret, she'll cruise at an average of about 34 knots or a little over 38 miles an hour.

She's about five city blocks long, and about a block 252 feet wide, with a flight deck more than four acres in size.

Her two acres of hangar space for the some 100 planes she'll carry bring the combined flight operations area to more than six acres.

The entire population of a city of 40,000 could stand on her decks. In height, from keel to top mast, the carrier rises to the equivalent of a 25-story building. She'll carry a crew of about 3,800 men.

Meter Collector Held By Detectives

CLEVELAND (AP)—Detective Chief James E. McArthur says a parking meter coin collector who admitted stealing the city's nickels will be charged with embezzlement.

The collector, identified as Julius J. Forro, 35, was arrested as he was getting into his automobile at the rear of City Hall. Police said a paper bag he was carrying contained 700 nickels and a total of 608 nickels were found in two more bags in his car.

A search of Forro's home turned up 135 pounds of nickels, estimated to be worth more than $1,000.

"community" project—services and money have generally been donated.

The Community Chest has helped considerably with the project, too, he said. So have private organizations, like the Lions Club. Waters was modest about it, but admitted that much money has come from his own pocket.

Being a "community" project in the developmental stage, it'll be a "community" project when it's done, Waters said. It is for everyone to use—people of city and county and travelers—he said.

Work on the baseball field began last fall, he noted. This spring, it was found that there were still some low spots, so the present filling operations began. Workmen have been at it for about a month now, he said.

Waters was really pleased that the park was nearly ready to go into use. But he is not stopping there; he had another goal: "Some day, I'd like to install lights," he said.

Air Force Says Lockbourne Fund Partly For Missiles

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Air Force said today the $4,952,000 appropriation received by the House for construction work at Lockbourne Air Base included funds for a Talos-equipped ground-to-air guided missile program.

But the Air Force would not say how much of the overall appropriation, still to be approved by the Senate, is earmarked for the Talos project. Aides of the House committee which handled the military works bill reported they could not give any details because it is classified information.

The appropriation bill itself listed the money for operational and training, maintenance, housing and community facilities, and land acquisition at Lockbourne.

Utah's Governor To Ignore Humphrey's Warning On Tax

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Utah's Gov. J. Bracken Lee said yesterday he got a letter from Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey telling him he had better pay his federal income tax by Monday.

But Lee said he wouldn't. He said Humphrey wrote him that if he didn't, then the Internal Revenue Service would "proceed in the usual manner" of collecting the taxes by filing a lien and levying on assets.

"I wrote him back," said Lee, "asking him to clarify what this 'usual manner' is."

"I want to know if he means that they'll just move in and confiscate property and money without due process, like they've done in the past at times, or if they'll have a court order."

Lee, a Republican, withheld part of his income tax payment when he filed his return Jan. 13—on that portion of his income above his $10,000 governor's salary. He would not say how much that was.

HE SAID HE wants to test the constitutionality of the tax itself, and the use of tax money for foreign aid.

Humphrey, in his letter, said he has legal advice that Lee's action would not serve as grounds for such a test case.

"My counsel has advised me," wrote Humphrey, "that the Supreme Court, in the case of Frothingham vs. Mellon (1923), rejected a taxpayer's attempt to object to congressional appropriations on the grounds that tax payments

Hammarhjold Winding Up Egyptian Talks

U. N. Peacemaker Sees Success In Gaining Lull In Hostilities

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold wrapped up the first stage of his peace talks with Egyptian officials today as an uneasy quiet held border.

Hammarskjold conferred for 30 minutes this morning with Egyptian Premier Nasser and talked for an hour with Foreign Minister Fazi.

The secretary was accompanied to the talks by U. N. trustee chief Maj. Gen. Burns and two U. N. experts, Henri Vigier and John Ridman. He was to return to his temporary headquarters in Beirut later today.

The secretary's mission appeared to have succeeded in clamping at least a temporary lid on the smoldering situation.

Both Israel and Egypt have given Hammarskjold written assurances they will refrain from hostile acts. The pledges were followed by a brief aerial dog fight and an exchange of border fire Thursday. Then quiet prevailed.

EGYPT WAS said to have given further assurances that she has pulled Arab commandos out of Israel. Israel accused the raiders of killing 14.

Hammarskjold, who is expected to spend a month conferring with Arab and Israeli leaders, is scheduled to push on to Israel Monday after a weekend of staff work at Beirut.

The secretary has sent Premier David Ben-Gurion a message asking further assurance that Israel had given orders to quit shooting across the border. He said Egypt had promised to issue such orders.

Hammarskjold is expected to take to Israel a plan to pull troops of both sides about one third of a mile back from the border.

Nasser originated the idea last summer and it received endorsement from the U. N. Security Council. Unconfirmed Cairo reports said Israeli had now agreed in principle.

One of the most dangerous aspects of the frontier situation in the opinion of many has been the heavy concentration of troops over the past six months.

It has been estimated that Egypt now has 60 per cent of its armed force in the eastern Sinai Desert near the Israeli frontier. There have been reports of a similar buildup on the Israeli side.

were being used for purposes claimed by the taxpayer to be unconstitutional."

Lee said he and his attorneys have studied this case, too, but still want to get into court. That's why, said the governor, he wants to know more specifically what the government will do in its "usual manner" of collecting the delinquent tax.

Completing his second term as governor, Lee plans to announce his political intentions Sunday, when income taxes are due.

"That seems to me to be as an appropriate time as any," he said.

New Blood Donor Appeal Issued

Fayette County's late, wet Spring has aimed a threat at the campaign to recruit blood donors for the visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile here next Wednesday.

And to block the threat, members of the sponsoring Gradale Society have evolved a new twist in their drive for volunteers.

"The weather has put off Spring plowing until the farm operators are nearly crazy," explained Mrs. Caroline Shaper, chairman of the county's Red Cross blood program.

"When the members of Gradale contact farmers and ask them to pledge blood donations, they can't promise. They all have to say, 'I'll be there if it rains, but I can't come if it's a pretty day.'"

To head off the threat of a pos-

Everything from preserved fruits to a shrunken human head was on display at Friday afternoon's achievement day session of the Fayette County home demonstration clubs.

Some 200 persons went to the Dayton Power and Light Co. auditorium to see exhibits which—with one exception—were projects completed by members of the county's 22 home demonstration clubs.

The exception, the shrunken

Hillsboro Test Papers Now Being Graded

HILLSBORO (AP)—Only grading of placement tests now separates 19 Negro youngsters from long-disputed entry into the Beshester-Washington school here.

The tests, taken yesterday under state education department supervision, will determine what grades the pupils shall enter after nearly two years away from regular school classes.

The two examiners, Dr. Ray G. Wood and Glenn A. Rich, are slated to check the tests over the weekend and final results are expected Monday. It had been reported earlier that local school officials would grade the tests.

Mrs. Imogene Curtis, who with other Negro mothers has tutored the children during the dispute, said the students reported the tests were not too difficult.

Five of the 24 children who were kept out of school when the dispute started, did not take the tests. No explanation was given.

Re-entry of the youngsters into school will end long litigation.

Mothers of the children, aided by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, filed suit seeking to end alleged segregation.

The U. S. Supreme Court last week upheld an appellate court order for immediate integration of the 24 students.

The Hillsboro school board had maintained it intended to integrate pupils in elementary schools as soon as new facilities are completed next fall.

head, was displayed by the speaker, Thomas Stickley. Stickley has just returned from Ecuador where he was an exchange student.

His talk included an outline of the customs of Ecuadorian natives, an exhibit of hand-woven native garments, a demonstration of a native dance and an explanation of how to shrink heads—"in case you want to know how it's done."

A highlight of the session was installation of officers to represent the countywide home demonstration clubs.

THE NEW president of the group is Miss Louise Ritter. Other officers are Mrs. Lloyd Moberly, vice president; Mrs. Lucie Eckle, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Gene Carmon and Mrs. Worley Melvin, publicity co-chairmen, and Mrs. Audrey Kessler, alumnae chairman.

The meeting opened with a welcome by the outgoing president, Mrs. Herschell Hulett. Mrs. John Case offered devotions on the theme, "They Shall Renew Their Strength."

Group singing of "America, the Beautiful" was led by Mrs. Laverne Morgan, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Audrey Kessler.

County Agent W. W. Montgomery outlined the year's work in Fayette County's home demonstration and 4-H clubs and Don Gibson of the county chapter of the Red Cross issued an appeal for help in meeting the drive quota. He said that the drive is less than halfway to its goal with the drive all but ended.

Mrs. Roy Young presented a skit on rugmaking, one of the major projects of the home demonstration clubs this year.

The program featured music by students at Washington C. H. High School. Janice Gillen played a piano solo and John Rhoad played a solo on the baritone saxophone to Kay Minshall's piano accompaniment.

Peak Is Tackled

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—An Argentine expedition has begun its attempt to scale rugged Mt. Dhaulagiri, the world's highest unconquered peak.

Following the installation of officers, members played a game of skill for prizes announced as "a matching washer and dryer." Each contestant guessed the number of kernels of corn in a jar. The winner, Mrs. Leona Edwards took home her "matching washer and dryer" over her arm.

They were a washcloth and towel.

State Examiner Reports on City

Three "Errors For Adjustment" Cited

Covering city records for the period from October 31, 1954 to Oct. 31, 1955, the report of State Examiner Charles W. Corbin has been filed with the city auditor, Miss Marie Melvin. A copy also was mailed to Solicitor William Junk.

There are no personal findings in the document and for the most parts officials were commended for their good work and also for their co-operation while the examination was underway.

Three "errors for adjustment" are mentioned in the report, one for $10 in favor of the gas tax fund; another for $792.73 in the auto license fund, and $5,739.20 in the gasoline tax fund.

The examiner points out that the above amounts were used from the auto license fund and gasoline tax fund to pay salaries at the city dump, and part of the salary of the city hall caretaker when they should have been used out of the general fund.

He lists the amounts as "errors for adjustment" under the city manager's department.

The examiner also challenged the employment of Fire Chief George Hall in the capacity of superintendent of the sewage disposal plant and quotes the law pertaining to employment of any city employee in another capacity for the city.

Records in various departments were found in good condition and department heads were complimented for their work.

GOP Party Boss Against Veto Action

President Huddling With Top Advisers On Agriculture, Economy

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Pressure was building up on all sides of President Eisenhower today as he grappled with the problem of what to do with the politically significant farm bill.

Today found the President thrashing out the problem with his chief agricultural and economic advisers at a conference at his vacation headquarters here.

Some farm state Republicans, anxious that Eisenhower allow the bill to become law despite his outspoken opposition to key parts of it, reportedly had gained the backing of Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall.

There were indications Eisenhower may act on the bill next week when he returns to Washington. Some reports said he would veto it. But the Little White House gave no hint of what the President might do. He has said the measure does not meet the test of a good bill.

WHAT EISENHOWER finally decides, whether to sign the bill, veto it or let it become law without his signature, is likely to have far-reaching impact in this national election year when Democrats are making a prime issue of continued depressed farm income.

As far as political expediency is concerned, the President could allow the bill to become law without his signature and still be in a position to speak against it during the campaign.

The Constitution gives the President 10 days (Sunday excluded) to sign or veto a bill after it reaches him. If he does not act within that time, the bill becomes law automatically if Congress is still in session. The bill was delivered to the White House Thursday, and Eisenhower thus has until midnight April 24 to act.

Eisenhower huddled today with Secretary of Agriculture Benson and Gabriel Hauge, his top economic adviser, along with other officials.

In Pittsburgh yesterday, Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, described the farm bill as "utterly bad." He urged the President to veto it. After that, Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, described the farm bill as "utterly bad." He urged the President to veto it. After that, Shuman said, Congress "should forget the political setting and try to write a workable farm bill."

Charles Brannan, a former secretary of agriculture in the Truman cabinet, declared that if Eisenhower signs the bill "as he should," it will help not only the farmers, but all citizens connected in any way with farm output.

Sources in Washington quoted Hall as telling some members of Congress he believes a veto would be a political "mistake." However, Hall was said to be offering little hope he could influence Eisenhower's decision in this matter.

Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) and Chairman Cooper (D-NC) of the House Agriculture Committee were among those urging that the bill be signed.

In Des Moines, Gov. Leo Hoegh of Iowa said he and the GOP governors of Kansas, Nebraska, and South Dakota have arraigned tentatively to carry to the President on Monday a personal appeal to sign the bill.

Bride And Groom Total Half Ton

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP)—A 23-year-old man, who says he weighs 640 pounds, married his 300-pound sweetheart last night.

W. D. Cowland of Erie, Pa., and Mabel Ruth Watkins, 21, of Aliquippa, Pa., were wed in the bus used by a traveling show in which Cowland appears. Technicians from a medical laboratory here and deputy county clerks had to go on the bus to take blood tests and issue the marriage license Cowland, because of his size, couldn't manage the courthouse steps.

The new Mrs. Cowland said she will join the show.

Young Farmer Feeling Brunt of Price Squeeze

Missouri Farm Wife
Author Of Story
Of Own Experience

A Columbia, Mo., farm wife today sounded a warning that it is the young farmer rather than the inefficient one who is being driven out of business by the current agricultural price squeeze.

In the Saturday Evening Post, Winifred Bryan Horner says that in most cases the person who is staying in farming is the older man who paid for his farm during the golden era of agriculture, 1929 to 1951.

"This man," she says, "with an unimpaired $50,000 operation, can supply his income needs with a less than 5 percent return on his capital and nothing for his labor."

She contrasts this with the young farmer down the road with a similar $50,000 enterprise, but faced with a mortgage on which he must make an annual 3 percent interest payment.

"And," she continues, "if he is capable and college-trained, big business is leaning over his pasture fence waving an attractive pay check. This is the farmer who is abandoning agriculture—the competent, well-trained man under 40 who can double or triple his income by going into another field."

MRS. HORNER tells the story of their own experience. Her husband, Dave, ranked in the upper one percent of his class and graduated in agricultural engineering. During an eight-year span their acreage increased fivefold, representing a $60,000 land investment; machinery had increased from one team to a $6,000 line of equipment; cattle rose from one milk cow to 35 good quality Herefords.

Then came falling farm prices and drought. In the summer of 1954, the Horners had put $2,000 into gasoline, seed and fertilizer. Their gross income on what was left of the crop was $275—a cash loss of $1,725. Return on land and machinery investment, nothing. Return on about 500 hours of Dave's labor, nothing.

Dave, like most of the farmers in the area, had to get a job off the farm. He is now a meteorologist with the U. S. Weather Bureau—putting in 40 hours a week for Uncle Sam, and 40 on the farm.

Mrs. Horner's article entitled "How Can We Stay on the Farm?" concludes with the statement that once again their expenses are increasing and farm income decreasing.

"This is our problem," she states. "But the problem facing this country today is that agriculture needs us for its future."

Quality of Poultry Is Affected by Feed

Experiments at Kansas State College have confirmed that the type of grain or grain combination fed to broilers has a definite effect on carcass shrinkage, quality, and feed cost.

In the tests five cereal grains—oats, corn, wheat, milo and barley—were fed individually and in various combinations. At the conclusion birds were graded for percent shrinkage, external carcass quality, feed efficiency, cost of production and growth.

Reporting on the results, Dr. Paul E. Sanford said that corn gave a lower percent shrinkage than other grains fed singly, while an equal combination of milo and barley produced the lowest percent shrinkage among birds fed combinations.

Birds fed corn had superior carcass quality when dressed at eight weeks and four days, but an equal combination of corn and wheat produced superior carcass quality in birds dressed at 10 weeks, he reported.

Wheat gave superior feed efficiency, while the lowest feed cost per pound was obtained with barley. A combination of 10 percent corn and 90 percent milo gave superior growth.

A Farmer's Note Book

By THOMAS E. BERRY
A FENCED DUG WELL

I just passed a southern Ohio farm where a well in a field, some distance from the house was neatly fenced with a board fence, painted white. It added to the appearance of the well kept fences on the farm, and was a very good means of protection to the well and to the livestock coming to the trough near it to drink. It added a factor of safety for livestock and children that might be playing on the well top too that I liked. This needs no comment except to say that a dug well on a farm, some distance from the farm buildings is easy to neglect, especially when there is so little farm labor available on the average family farm and most of the work must be done by the owner and his family.

WIND DAMAGE TO BEE HIVES

This is unusual for bees keep the sections tightly sealed and attached to each other, but there is always the hazard that a hive will be blown over against another hive and the colonies in each injured. I saw an example of this last week. A simple way to prevent it would be to have the hives far enough apart so that if one is blown over, it won't hit another hive.

STRAIGHTENING A MEANDERING STREAM IN A PASTURE FIELD

This is simple in most cases, for where the stream has many curves in them the fall is usually only a few inches per 100 feet, they are flowing through the flood plain of the stream, as a geologist would express it. All you need to do is to run a level and locate the stream where it ought to be, using as much of the basin as possible, throwing out a furrow each way and one in the center. This usually leaves many small ox-bow lakes that will fill with sediment during floods. You may need to use your scraper some but the small ox-bow lakes will be a good place to put the dirt. We straightened a crooked stream this way on my own farm, at the suggestion of my farm partner. I was surprised at how quickly the new straightened creek bed got established. Then in a few years the small ox-bow lakes were pretty well filled with sediment.

FIRE HAZARD IN BURNING BRUSH AND STUMPS ON A WINDY DAY

If you have ever done any clearing, you'll appreciate this statement, as you carried some fire from one stump to another, or from one brush pile to another. It's an easy matter to drop a live coal in the cuff of your trousers, or to have one fall off of a stump as you pass it, and lodge in your trouser cuff. That's probably what happened to me a good many years ago when we were doing some clearing. I thought I smelled cloth burning, but I looked myself over carefully and found nothing; but the burning cloth odor still continued as I carried fire from one brush pile to another. Suddenly the back of a trouser leg burst into flame and I was in so much pain that I thought I'd run to a creek some distance away and put the fire out; then it occurred to me to lie down and roll over and over in the plowed ground, which put the fire out. It's easy to get panicky when you are in great pain from a fire in your clothing, but the thing to do is to lie down and put the fire out with dust or dirt that is usually easy to get. Doing as simple a thing like this might save your life or the life of some of your children or members of your family.

GOOD THINNING CUTTING IN A WOOD LOT

I recently passed a wood lot or "woods" as farmers usually refer to it, where a thinning cutting was being well done. The weed trees, those that were crooked and often with wide spreading branches, were being taken out as were the water beech, and dog wood, and the young growth that was stunted. The remaining trees grows much faster and the wood cut out will be useful in the kitchen range or fire place or grate still used in many southern Ohio farm homes.

DROP IN FEED INTAKE OF THE FARM FLOCK

When that happens, do something about it at once, or the egg production will go down. Feeding some of the modern antibiotics or a moist mash on top of the mash in the feeders, that is just moist enough to stick together, are two of the things that you can do. Another is to give the flock very close attention, especially during the late winter and spring months, when the wind changes quickly and the temperature may fall fast as the wind shifts from the south to the north, chilling the flock. "You've got to give a high egg laying flock closer attention than you do a high producing herd of dairy cattle, my farmer brother often said, and he was very successful with laying hens and usually kept the egg production fairly constant. As this is being written, the wind is shifting from the south around to the west, by night we are expected to have a freezing temperature and the thermometer was standing a little above 60 at 2 o'clock. You'll need to close some windows when we have that quick a change; if you don't the flock may get chilled and go into a slump."

"WHEN A HOG ROOTS IT ISN'T EATING."

That's what a very good southern Ohio farmer recently pointed out. "We watch your hogs closely and when one loses his ring we get it in and 'fix it all its jewelry again," as he expressed it. Dairymen and selling finished porkers brings in most of the income from his farm except what comes from a very good flock of laying hens that keep the table going and that's a big item of expense in any family. This farm provides more pasture and roughage for the cows than most farms for the pastures get about as much attention as any crop raised on the farm, so hogs are not allowed to interfere with it in any way. When I asked why they didn't have a flock of sheep to keep the weeds down in the pastures, the owner said that they ate the grass too close to the ground. "Then sheep very well on a small farm like this one, so we keep the weeds down in the pastures by clipping, whenever it is needed," the owner explained. He thinks that sheep have a place on many farms, especially where you have some rough grazing land, but he doesn't have it; almost all of his farm can be cultivated and is in the three year rotation of corn, wheat and clover.

WHITE EGGS VS. BROWN EGGS

It doesn't cost any more to produce white eggs than it does to produce brown eggs but the white eggs are usually from two to three cents the highest. That's true as this is being written and it's been true during the late winter and spring months. This is understandable for a basket of white eggs on a city market is much more attractive than a basket of brown eggs and they sell faster. Dealers tell me, "Nuf sed" about this.

IS THE FIRE OUT?

This is a good question to ask yourself when you are cleaning up the farmstead and burning some trash near the buildings. It may seem to be out, but if there is a strong wind in the night it may start up again endangering your buildings. I saw this well illustrated at our home this week. We burned a pile of leaves and small brush that had been accumulating during the fall and winter months. I thought it was out but when I came

Lamb Promotion Pays In Regional Testing

Advertising aimed at boosting the consumption of lamb has paid off, in its first regional test in the Denver area by more than doubling the demand for lamb, announced the American Sheep Producers Council.

Fayette County sheepmen are among those who helped pay for the test of the advertising methods. The funds came from a one-cent pound levy on wool sold by all sheep producers.

The Denver test boosted consumption of lamb in the Denver area from an estimated 4 to 5 pounds a year per person to 10 1/2 pounds.

Lamb increased from approximately 3 percent of all red meat before the promotion to about 7 percent during the promotion period, Council reported. Previously, the average Denver resident ate an estimated 4 to 5 pounds of lamb a year. During the promotion consumption was boosted to a rate corresponding to 10 1/2 pounds a year, retailer reports indicate.

Although the sheep industry proposes to increase consumer demand for lamb all over the United States, it has begun with a series of local promotions, the council announced.

"BECAUSE LAMB is now in short supply," explained J. M. "Casey" Jones, the council's executive secretary, "we feel our advertising dollars can best be invested at the start in increasing the flow of lamb to the consumer at the local level."

"Consumption is not the same in all areas," he revealed. "Recent declines in sheep production have allowed some markets to dry up and the people there to forget about lamb."

"In some states the average person eats 12 1/2 pounds a year, while in others the average resident eats only a small fraction of a pound. Some estimate that only a third of the country's meat markets even sell lamb."

"Obviously, we'd be wasting our advertising dollars to advertise lamb where it's not yet available," the council's secretary declared. "In our regional promotions we're not only advertising lamb widely in newspapers and over broadcast stations, but we're also working closely with packers and retailers to assure enough supply to meet the increasing demand."

In from an evening call it had started up again. We did such a thorough job of wetting the remaining pile of leaves that burned slowly in the middle, that we were sure it was out. This morning the sun came out and in a few hours we had a high dry wind and remnant of a dust storm from the south west, and it started up again and was driving smoke toward some buildings. We wet it down again and we hope it is out.

The average Ohioan eats 2.2 pounds of lamb a year according to the council's figures. By comparison, here are figures for Massachusetts (12.4), California (12.3) and New York (11.5).

Mississippi has the lowest per-capita annual consumption of lamb, 0.7 pounds a year. Next lowest, all at 0.3 pounds a year, are Alabama, Arkansas, Oklahoma and South Carolina.

Council expects gradually to reactivate the dormant lamb markets. Then, after lamb distribution is improved, more and more national advertising will be employed. "As more Americans are reminded of lamb's succulent goodness, as well as wool's superiority as a fiber for textiles," predicted Mr. Jones, "sheep production will increase to satisfy the expanding markets."

Forests Damaged By Pasturing, Claim

Seventy-three percent of the woodland acreage in Fayette County is pastured and the Ohio Forestry Association is viewing with concern the large amount of forest land in the state that is being put to this use, because, of experts say, much damage inflicted to young trees.

Livestock is literally eating Ohio's woodlands out of house and home. Almost one out of every three acres is grazed. This, the Ohio Forestry Association, Inc., views with alarm as the greatest drawback to securing young tree growth that exists in Ohio's forests today. In fact OFA puts it as greater than fire and poor cutting combined.

A recent survey by the Central States Forest Experiment Station showed grazing so heavy on over half a million acres of forest land that reproduction had been mostly eliminated and if continued would eventually result in elimination of the forest cover. The facts are presented in OFA's watershed conservation plan, "Valleys of Opportunity."

The study shows 1,605,000 acres of woodland pastured. This represents 30 percent of all the forest land in Ohio, or about half of the farm-owned woodlands. Greatest concentration of grazing is reported ed in the Great Miami River Watershed where three out of every four acres are pastured.

In addition to the damage to young growth, conservation authorities have also noted that woodland grazing is detrimental to water conservation.

The tramping of cattle has a tendency to pack soils and hinders rainfall from soaking into the ground, thus increasing run-off.

Kidnaper Of Baby Gets 1-Year Term

SAN FRANCISCO (P)—"To want a child as she did was not bad but the way she went about it was bad," said Judge John Molinari as he sentenced a sobbing 25-year-old woman to one year in jail for kidnaping a 3-day-old baby.

"I won't disappoint you, judge," Mrs. Betty Jean Benedicto sobbed after the sentence was read yesterday. The judge said she was "emotionally unstable."

Mrs. Benedicto admitted she stole tiny Robert Marcus from his hospital crib Sept. 19 and took him to her Stockton home. The father, Dr. Sanford Marcus, made emotional appeals for her return of the baby. She handed over the baby to a priest nine days later.

Young Farmer Feeling Brunt of Price Squeeze

Missouri Farm Wife
Author Of Story
Of Own Experience

A Columbia, Mo., farm wife today sounded a warning that it is the young farmer rather than the inefficient one who is being driven out of business by the current agricultural price squeeze.

In the Saturday Evening Post, Winifred Bryan Horner says that in most cases the person who is staying in farming is the older man who paid for his farm during the golden era of agriculture, 1939 to 1951.

"This man," she says, "with an un-mortgaged $50,000 operation, can supply his income needs with a less than 5 percent return on his capital and nothing for his labor."

She contrasts this with the young farmer down the road with a similar $50,000 enterprise, but faced with a mortgage on which he must make an annual 5 percent interest payment.

"And," she continues, "if he is capable and college-trained, big business is leaning over his pasture fence waving an attractive pay check. This is the farmer who is abandoning agriculture—the competent, well-trained man under 40 who can double or triple his income by going into another field."

MRS. HORNER tells the story of their own experience. Her husband, Dave, ranked in the upper one percent of his class and graduated in agricultural engineering. During an eight-year span their acreage increased fivefold, representing a $60,000 land investment; machinery had increased from one team to a $6,000 line of equipment; cattle rose from one milk cow to 35 good quality Herefords.

Then came falling farm prices and drought. In the summer of 1954, the Horners had put $2,000 into gasoline, seed and fertilizer. Their gross income on what was left of the crop was $275—a cash loss of $1,725. Return on land and machinery investment, nothing. Return on about 500 hours of Dave's labor, nothing.

Dave, like most of the farmers in the area, had to get a job off the farm. He is now a meteorologist with the U. S. Weather Bureau—putting in 40 hours a week for Uncle Sam, and 40 on the farm.

Mrs. Horner's article entitled "How Can We Stay on the Farm?" concludes with the statement that once again their expenses are increasing and farm income decreasing.

"This is our problem," she states. "But the problem facing this country today is that agriculture needs us for its future."

Quality of Poultry Is Affected by Feed

Experiments at Kansas State College have confirmed that the type of grain or grain combination fed to broilers has a definite effect on carcass shrinkage, quality, and feed cost.

In the tests five cereal grains—oats, corn, wheat, milo and barley—were fed individually and in various combinations. At the conclusion birds were graded for percent shrinkage, external carcass quality, feed efficiency, cost of production and growth.

Reporting on the results, Dr. Paul E. Sanford said that corn gave a lower percent shrinkage than other grains fed singly, while an equal combination of milo and barley produced the lowest percent shrinkage among birds fed combinations.

Birds fed corn had superior carcass quality when dressed at eight weeks and four days, but an equal combination of corn and wheat produced superior carcass quality in birds dressed at 10 weeks, he reported.

Wheat gave superior feed efficiency, while the lowest feed cost per pound was obtained with barley. A combination of 10 percent corn and 90 percent milo gave superior growth.

A Farmer's Note Book

By THOMAS E. BERRY
A FENCED DUG WELL

I just passed a southern Ohio farm where a well in a field, some distance from the house was neatly fenced with a board fence, painted white. It added to the appearance of the well kept fences on the farm, and was a very good means of protection to the well and to the livestock coming to the trough near it to drink. It added a factor of safety for livestock and children that might be playing on the well top too that I liked. This needs no comment except to say that a dug well on a farm, some distance from the farm buildings is easy to neglect, especially when there is so little farm labor available on the average family farm and most of the work must be done by the owner and his family.

WIND DAMAGE TO BEE HIVES

This is unusual for bees keep the sections tightly sealed and attached to each other, but there is always the hazard that a hive will be blown over against another hive and the colonies in each injured. I saw an example of this last week. A simple way to prevent it would be to have the hives far enough apart so that if one is blown over, it won't hit another hive.

STRAIGHTENING A MEANDERING STREAM IN A PASTURE FIELD

This is simple in most cases, for where the streams have many curves in them the fall is usually only a few inches per 100 feet, they are flowing through the flood plain of the stream, as a geologist would express it. All you need to do is to run a level and locate the stream where it ought to be, using as much of the basin as possible, throwing out a furrow each way and one in the center. This usually leaves many small ox-bow lakes that will fill with sediment during floods. You may need to use your scraper some but the small ox-bow lakes will be a good place to put the dirt. We straightened a crooked stream this way on my own farm, at the suggestion of my farm partner. I was surprised at how quickly the new straightened creek bed got established. Then in a few years the small ox-bow lakes were pretty well filled with sediment.

FIRE HAZARD IN BURNING BRUSH AND STUMPS ON A WINDY DAY

If you have ever done any clearing, you'll appreciate this statement, as you carried some fire from one stump to another, or from one brush pile to another. It's an easy matter to drop a live coal in the cuff of your trousers, or to have one fall off of a stump as you pass it, and lodge in your trouser cuff. That's probably what happened to me a good many years ago when we were doing some clearing. I thought I smelled cloth burning, but I looked myself over carefully and found nothing; but the burning cloth odor still continued as I carried fire from one brush pile to another. Suddenly the back of a trouser leg burst into flame and I was in so much pain that I thought I'd run to a creek some distance away and put the fire out; then it occurred to me to lie down and roll over and over in the plowed ground, which put the fire out. It's easy to get panicky when you are in great pain from a fire in your clothing, but the thing to do is to lie down and put the fire out with dust or dirt that is usually easy to get. Doing as simple a thing like this might save your life or the life of some of your children or members of your family.

GOOD THINNING CUTTING IN A WOOD LOT

I recently passed a wood lot or "woods" as farmers usually refer to it, where a thinning cutting was being well done. The weed trees, those that were crooked and often with wide spreading branches, were being taken out as were the water beech, and dog wood, and the young growth that was stunted. The remaining trees grows much faster and the wood cut out will be useful in the kitchen range or fireplace or grate still used in many southern Ohio farm homes.

DROP IN FEED INTAKE OF THE FLOCK

When that happens, do something about it at once, or the egg production will go down. Feeding some of the modern antibiotics or a moist mash on top of the mash in the feeders, that is just moist enough to stick together, are two of the things that you can do. Another is to give the flock very close attention, especially during the late winter and spring months, when the wind changes quickly and the temperature may fall fast as the wind shifts from the south to the north, chilling the flock. "You've got to give a high egg laying flock closer attention than you do a high producing herd of dairy cattle, my farmer brother often said, and he was very successful with laying hens, and usually kept the egg production fairly constant. As this is being written, the wind is shifting from the south around to the west; by night we are expected to have a freezing temperature and the thermometer was standing a little above 60 at 2 o'clock. You'll need to close some windows when we have that quick a change; if you don't the flock may get chilled and go into a slump.

"WHEN A HOG ROOTS IT ISN'T EATING."

That's what a very good southern Ohio farmer recently pointed out. "We watch your hogs closely and when one loses his ring we get it in and 'In stall its jewelry again,'" as he expressed it. Dairying and selling finished porkers brings in most of the income from his farm except what comes from a very good flock of laying hens that keep the table going and that's a big item of expense in any family. This farm provides more pasture and roughage for the cows than most farms for the pastures get about as much attention as any crop raised on the farm, so hogs are not allowed to interfere with it in any way. When I asked why they didn't have a flock of sheep to keep the weeds down in the pastures, the owner said that they ate the grass too close to the ground. "Then sheep and dairy cattle don't go together very well on a small farm like this one, so we keep the weeds down in the pastures by clipping, whenever it is needed," the owner explained. He thinks that sheep have a place on many farms, especially where you have some rough grazing land, but he doesn't have it; almost all of his farm can be cultivated and is in the three year rotation of corn, wheat and clover.

WHITE EGGS VS. BROWN EGGS

It doesn't cost any more to produce white eggs than it does to produce brown eggs but the white eggs are usually from two to three cents the highest. That's true as this is being written and it's been true during the late winter and spring months. This is understandable for a basket of white eggs on a city market is much more attractive than a basket of brown eggs and they sell faster, dealers tell me. "Nuf sed" about this.

IS THE FIRE OUT?

This is a good question to ask yourself when you are cleaning up the farmstead and burning some trash near the buildings. It may seem to be out, but if there is a strong wind in the night it may start up again endangering your buildings. I saw this well illustrated at our home this week; we burned a pile of leaves and small brush that had been accumulating during the fall and winter months. I thought it was out but when I came

Lamb Promotion Pays In Regional Testing

Advertising aimed at boosting the consumption of lamb has paid off in its first regional test in the Denver area by more than doubling the demand for lamb, announced the American Sheep Producers Council.

Fayette County sheepmen are among those who helped pay for the test of the advertising methods. The funds came from a one-cent pound levy on wool sold by all sheep producers.

The Denver test boosted consumption of lamb in the Denver area from an estimated 4 to 5 pounds a year per person to 10½ pounds.

Lamb increased from approximately 3 percent of all red meat before the promotion to about 7 percent during the promotion period, Council reported. Previously, the average Denver resident ate an estimated 4 to 5 pounds of lamb a year. During the promotion consumption was boosted to a rate corresponding to 10½ pounds a year, retailer reports indicate.

Although the sheep industry proposes to increase consumer demand for lamb all over the United States, it has begun with a series of local promotions, the council announced.

"BECAUSE LAMB is now in short supply," explained J. M. "Casey" Jones, the council's executive secretary, "we feel our advertising dollars can best be invested at the start in increasing the flow of lamb to the consumer at the local level."

"Consumption is not the same in all areas," he revealed. "Recent declines in sheep production have allowed some markets to dry up and the people there to forget about lamb."

"In some states the average person eats 12½ pounds a year, while in others the average resident eats only a small fraction of a pound. Some estimate that only a third of the country's meat markets even sell lamb."

"Obviously, we'd be wasting our advertising dollars to advertise lamb where it's not yet available," the council's secretary declared. "In our regional promotions we're not only advertising lamb widely in newspapers and over broadcast stations, but we're also working closely with packers and retailers to assure enough supply to meet the increasing demand."

In started an evening call it had started up again. We did such a thorough job of wetting the remaining pile of leaves that burned slowly in the middle, that we were sure it was out. This morning the sun came out and in a few hours we had a high dry wind and remnant of a dust storm from the south west, and it started up again and was driving smoke toward some buildings. We wet it down again and we hope it is out.

Project Books For 4-H Put Out

Junior Leaders
Hold Meeting - Here

The new project books were presented to members of the Junior Leadership Club at their meeting Thursday night in the Dayton Power & Light Co. auditorium. Gene Gustin, Eldon Smith, Dick Klever, Marilyn Writsell and Roger Sollars presented certain portions of the book to the junior leaders there. These five were a part of the group that attended the six county Junior Leadership Conference on March 17 when these new books were first released.

Junior Leaders, commenting on the new books, admitted they are going to be more difficult to fill out but would, no doubt, be of more value to the club and the junior leaders than the old books.

Comments, which came out of the six-county Junior Leadership Conference, as to problems and recommendations for the improvement were studied. Some minor changes will come about in the local club, due to this conference. However, no great changes are contemplated.

A COMMITTEE was appointed by the President Roger Sollars to lead the Blood Bank solicitation for June 14 here in Fayette County. On the committee are Dave Whiteside, Dick Klever, Gene Gustin, Alan Wilt and Sollars.

This committee will meet to map out the plan of action for solicitation when the Blood Bank is here in June.

The Fayette County 4-H Junior Camp was discussed. The date of this year's camp will be June 18 through 23.

About 20 junior leaders will be taken to the camp to act as junior camp counsellors. The junior leaders had the opportunity to sign up to be considered for junior camp counsellors and the camp committee, along with the extension agents, will make the final selections within the week.

The meeting was concluded with Bob Montgomery leading some games.

FEDERAL LAND BANK LOANS

The LONG term and LOW interest rate of a Federal Land Bank loan makes it stand out among all real estate loans available today.

LONG term means you'll have 20, 33, 34½, or even 40 years to repay. And, there's no penalty for paying ahead of schedule.

LOW interest rate means your 4% interest rate can never go higher during the life of your loan. Dividends, as paid, have the net effect of reducing this even further.

Wool Payment Application Due

May 1 Deadline For Claim Filing

Wool growers, in order to receive incentive payments under the 1955 wool program which ended March 31, must get their applications for payment into the county ASC office before May 1, to be sure of their payment this year.

This also applies to forms for sale of feeder lambs for slaughter.

Furthermore, it was pointed out that payment cannot be approved unless all the required information is submitted with the application.

And one more reminder: wool growers should recall that as the result of the vote in the referendum last August, a one cent per pound deduction will be made from wool payments and 5 cents per hundred pounds from lamb and yearling payments in order to finance the campaign to enlarge the market for wool and lambs.

Layette County wool growers will be interested to know that incentive payments under the wool program for 1955 year should average around 40 percent of the average price growers have received for their wool.

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture report, wool prices during the first 10 months of the year averaged 44 cents per pound, grease basis.

SINCE MOST of the wool eligible for 1955 payment had been sold during this 10-month period, the average price is not expected to be materially different when all reports are in. On this basis the payment for lambs slaughtered with wool on, will be around 70 cents per hundred pounds of live weight.

These estimates are based on the announced average incentive price of 62 cents per pound for wool grease basis. The payment to the individual grower will be based on the national percentage needed to bring the average return from wool to a grower to 62 cents per pound. The grower who sold his wool at a below average price will receive a correspondingly smaller payment per pound of wool.

Wool sold after April 1, 1956, will be credited to the 1956 wool program.

Farm Credit Last Year Was Over Billion

Farmers in 1955 borrowed $1.4 billion to help finance their farm operations from their 498 production credit associations. This was the largest for any year since these credit cooperatives began operation in 1933 and 1934, Harold A. Miles, deputy governor and director of short-term credit service of the Farm Credit Administration said.

The $633 million in loans outstanding on Dec. 31, was also the largest amount outstanding for any year end since organization. The amount of loans made was up 9 percent from 1954 and the amount outstanding on Dec. 31 was 11 percent higher than on the same date the previous year.

"The increased loan volume was due to farmers needing more credit in their normal farming operations," Miles commented. "Also, many farmers needed larger loans because of drought and other unfavorable weather conditions as well as higher farm equipment and operating costs."

Individual farmers were using larger amounts of credit at the end of the year. The average amount outstanding on their loans on Dec. 31, was $3,408, compared with $3,122 Dec. 31, 1954.

Farmers obtain credit for all types of crop and livestock production from the 498 production credit associations which serve all areas of the Nation. The associations are controlled by farmer-members who use the associations. The associations form part of the cooperative Farm Credit System supervised by the Farm Credit Administration.

Soil Conservation Plan Pays

Following the soil conservation plan worked out with them has paid off for Mr. and Mrs. George Black, central Ohio farmers.

When they started farming for themselves in 1950 on their 99-acre farm south of London, they had a three-year rotation of corn small grain and one year of meadow. They had 10 cows which produced an average of 6,000 pounds of milk a year, 4 to 6 head of young cattle, 3 brood sows and 300 chickens. Their average yields were 40 bushels of corn and about 2 tons of hay.

In 1951, the soil conservation plan was started and worked out with Black and the Farmers Home Administration, which refinanced his operations and provided funds for a pole barn, silo, milk house and land improvements.

Since the complete new field arrangement required new fences, the Wildlife Division of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources provided and planted 5,800 multi-flora rose to produce these living fences as a part of his plan.

Last year, the plan was well in operation and the production was paying off. Now Black has 22 cows averaging 9,000 pounds of milk production 12 to 18 head of young cattle and 250 to 400 chickens. His yields have increased to 82 bushels of corn and 4 tons on his alfalfa-grass meadows.

The five-year rotation of corn, soy beans, small grain and two years of alfalfa-grass meadow will be changed to corn small grain and three years of meadow when the dairy program will use the extra forage.

Paul Bangham, Soil Conservationist of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, worked with the Blacks and Alvin Barr of the FHA in establishing this plan.

IN THE SPRING of 1952, Chester Smith and his family moved to their rolling farm in the southern part of Clermont County from a flat farm in northwestern Ohio.

The two farms were extremely different, not only in topography, but in the soils as well.

The farm was in a very low state of production. Part of it was idle land and the remainder of eligible cropland had been in continuous corn and other row crops that had depleted the soil and exposed it to severe erosion damage.

Needing assistance in getting his farm program started in the right direction, Smith contacted the SCS technicians of the Clermont Soil Conservation District in July 1952. Since then, Smith has constructed 4,600 feet of terraces, with plans to terrace three more fields; has constructed 400 feet of soil waterways as terrace outlets; improved and reseeded 16 acres of permanent pasture; cultivated 15 acres of cropland on the contour; and has constructed one farm pond, with plans to construct two more. In addition, he has an adequate and going lime, fertilizer and soil-building program.

During the four years on the farm, Smith has increased his crop yields 100 percent or more. During 1954, the corn crop yielded about 80-85 bushels per acre. In 1955 the wheat crop yielded about 30 bushels per acre; the oats crop, 60 bushels per acre; and the legume-grass meadows, about 2½ tons per acre.

Smith says: "When you move from a flat farm to a rolling farm such as I now have, you have to make some quick changes in your management."

Last year, the plan was well in operation and the production was paying off. Now Black has 22 cows averaging 9,000 pounds of milk production 12 to 18 head of young cattle and 250 to 400 chickens. His yields have increased to 82 bushels of corn and 4 tons on his alfalfa-grass meadows.

The five-year rotation of corn, soy beans, small grain and two years of alfalfa-grass meadow will be changed to corn small grain and three years of meadow when the dairy program will use the extra forage.

Paul Bangham, Soil Conservationist of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, worked with the Blacks and Alvin Barr of the FHA in establishing this plan.

IN THE SPRING of 1952, Chester Smith and his family moved to their rolling farm in the southern part of Clermont County from a flat farm in northwestern Ohio.

The two farms were extremely different, not only in topography, but in the soils as well.

The farm was in a very low state of production. Part of it was idle land and the remainder of eligible cropland had been in continuous corn and other row crops that had depleted the soil and exposed it to severe erosion damage.

Needing assistance in getting his farm program started in the right direction, Smith contacted the SCS technicians of the Clermont Soil Conservation District in July 1952. Since then, Smith has constructed 4,600 feet of terraces, with plans to terrace three more fields; has constructed 400 feet of soil waterways as terrace outlets; improved and reseeded 16 acres of permanent pasture; cultivated 15 acres of cropland on the contour; and has constructed one farm pond, with plans to construct two more. In addition, he has an adequate and going lime, fertilizer and soil-building program.

During the four years on the farm, Smith has increased his crop yields 100 percent or more. During 1954, the corn crop yielded about 80-85 bushels per acre. In 1955 the wheat crop yielded about 30 bushels per acre; the oats crop, 60 bushels per acre; and the legume-grass meadows, about 2½ tons per acre.

Smith says: "When you move from a flat farm to a rolling farm such as I now have, you have to make some quick changes in your management."

Since the complete new field arrangement required new fences, the Wildlife Division of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources provided and planted 5,800 multi-flora rose to produce these living fences as a part of his plan.

Swine Cholera Flare-Up Seen

Farmers Urged To Take Precautions

A serious flareup of hog cholera in many swine-producing areas is a definite threat this spring, according to a warning issued today by the American Foundation for Animal Health.

"Everything indicates that this worst of all swine killers will again cost millions of dollars in losses, if control measures are not taken before the serious cholera outbreak season starts," Foundation authorities said.

(2) Different types of vaccination are recommended under varying conditions. The type best suited for each situation should be determined by a veterinarian.

(3) Cholera can be confused with other swine diseases, such as erysipelas, so any swine sickness that looks like cholera should be investigated promptly by a veterinarian in order that it can be diagnosed and control measures can be taken.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Samuel James Seymour, believed the last surviving witness to the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, died today. He was 96.

Seymour, a carpenter and contractor who made his home in the Baltimore area, had been in failing health since February, when he fell in a New York City hotel just before appearing on a national television program honoring Lincoln's birthday. He died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Irene Hendley, in Arlington, Va.

Seymour said he recalled being in Ford's Theater as a child of five when John Wilkes Booth fired the fatal shot and leaped upon the stage.

Florida had a population gain of 19.1 percent between April 1, 1950 and July 1, 1954.

4-H Club Activities

STAR FASHIONETTES

The Bloomingburg Star Fashionettes 4-H club has postponed its bake sale from April 14 to April 21.

Agreement for the change of date was made at a regular club meeting at the Bloomingburg school.

At the same meeting, a calendar committee was appointed to help lay plans for the club's forthcoming activities. Glenna Watkins is chairman, and members are Nancy Nessell, Janet McConaughy and Wanda Paul.

Members discussed baking projects at the meeting.

Refreshments were served by Dorothy Fortier, Gloria Cleland and Wanda Paul.

CHAFFIN

Barry Warner and Carolyn Carr are on the constitution committee of the new Chaffin 4-H club. They were appointed at the second regular meeting of the brand-new unit.

A name for the club—the youngest in the county—will be selected at the next meeting, members agreed. Until then, it will remain the "Chaffin" 4-H club, after its meeting place.

The club practiced parliamentary procedure at their recent meeting, in order that they'll get off on the "right foot," and be able to run an orderly organization.

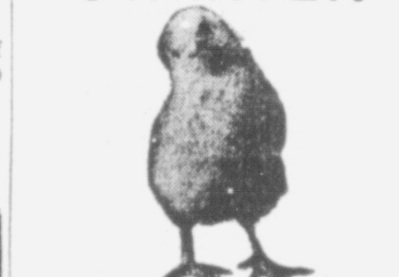

Barry Warner and Billy Yeoman served refreshments. Next meeting will be April 26, and Roy Boggs and Bob Penwell will serve refreshments.

Alfalfa Yields Cut By Lime Deficiency

One leading agronomist writes: "Lime is an old story but there is something new for 1956 and future years. Acid soil without a doubt limits the production of all forages, but especially the new Marra gansett and DuPuits alfalfa more than any other factor. Acid soil makes farmers disappointed with the fertilizer they buy. Research and farm trials show that many farmers can grow alfalfa provided they lime as needed, fertilize right and choose the best variety. Lack of lime will be the main cause for limiting acreage of better legumes in 1956."

The use of fertilizers and alfalfa seed continues to increase every year with the exception of a slight decline in 1955 for fertilizer, but the use of lime has declined nationally from over 50 million tons in 1947 to less than 19 million tons in 1954, a drop of nearly 40 percent in a period of eight years. Soil tests made in every state in the humid area indicate that a high percentage of the soils need lime to obtain the best yield of any crop and a majority of them need it to grow legumes. Applications of 2 tons per acre are usual and 4 or more tons not unusual, particularly on clay loam soils. For sandy soils the lime requirement is somewhat lower.

Under government programs, the producer-prices for milk decline in the spring season of heavy production. Producer groups contend that in this instance the declines are too drastic in view of milk production costs.

The hearing will open at 10 a.m. in the main ballroom of the Southern Hotel.

Rep. Bow (R-Ohio) said yesterday the hearing would open next Thursday. He said today the date had been changed.

Ohio Milk Price Parley Due April 20

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department announced today a hearing will be held in Columbus Friday, April 20 to consider possible increases in producer prices of milk sold under federal marketing orders in Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia.

The hearing was called at the request of producer groups and distributors. They claim that moderation of seasonal price declines is necessary.

Market areas involved include: Ohio — Toledo, Akron, Canton, Springfield, Cincinnati, the Ohio Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, River Valley markets and Lima; Indiana—Fort Wayne; and West Virginia — Clarksburg and Great Wheeling.

Wool Payment Application Due

May 1 Deadline For Claim Filing

Wool growers, in order to receive incentive payments under the 1955 wool program, which ended March 31, must get their applications for payment into the county ASC office before May 1, to be sure of their payment this year.

This also applies to forms for sale of feeder lambs for slaughter.

Furthermore, it was pointed out that payment cannot be approved unless all the required information is submitted with the application.

And one more reminder: wool growers should recall that as the result of the vote in the referendum last August, a one cent per pound deduction will be made from wool payments and 5 cents per hundred pounds from lamb and yearling payments in order to finance the campaign to enlarge the market for wool and lambs.

Iayette County wool growers will be interested to know that incentive payments under the wool program for 1955 year should average around 40 percent of the average price growers have received for their wool.

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture report, wool prices during the first 10 months of the year averaged 44 cents per pound, grease basis.

SINCE MOST of the wool eligible for 1955 payment had been sold during this 10-month period, the average price is not expected to be materially different when all reports are in. On this basis the payment for lambs slaughtered with wool on, will be around 70 cents per hundred pounds of live weight.

These estimates are based on the announced average incentive price of 62 cents per pound for wool grease basis. The payment to the individual grower will be based on the national percentage needed to bring the average return from wool to a grower to 62 cents per pound. The grower who sold his wool at a below average price will receive a correspondingly smaller payment per pound of wool.

Wool sold after April 1, 1956, will be credited to the 1956 wool program.

Farm Credit Last Year Was Over Billion

Farmers in 1955 borrowed $1.4 billion to help finance their farm operations from their 498 production credit associations. This was the largest for any year since these credit cooperatives began operation in 1933 and 1934, Harold A. Miles, deputy governor and director of short-term credit service of the Farm Credit Administration said.

The $653 million in loans outstanding on Dec. 31, was also the largest amount outstanding for any year since organization. The amount of loans made was up 9 percent from 1954 and the amount outstanding on Dec. 31 was 11 percent higher than on the same date the previous year.

"The increased loan volume was due to farmers needing more credit in their normal farming operations," Miles commented. "Also, many farmers needed larger loans because of drought and other unfavorable weather conditions as well as higher farm equipment and operating costs."

Individual farmers were using larger amounts of credit at the end of the year. The average amount outstanding on their loans on Dec. 31, was $3,408, compared with $3,122 Dec. 31, 1954.

Farmers obtain credit for all types of crop and livestock production from the 498 production credit associations which serve all areas of the Nation. The associations are controlled by farmer-members who use the associations. The associations form part of the cooperative Farm Credit System supervised by the Farm Credit Administration.

Soil Conservation Plan Pays

Following the soil conservation plan worked out with them a s paid off for Mr. and Mrs. George Black, central Ohio farmers.

When they started farming for themselves in 1950 on their 99-acre farm south of London, they had a three-year rotation of corn small grain and one year of meadow. They had 10 cows which produced an average of 6,000 pounds of milk a year, 4 to 6 head of young cattle, 3 brood sows and 300 chickens. Their average yields were 40 bushels of corn and about 2 tons of hay.

In 1951, the soil conservation plan was started and worked out with Black and the Farmers Home Administration, which refinanced his operations and provided funds for a pole barn, silo, milk house and land improvements.

Since the complete new field arrangement required new fences, the Wildlife Division of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources provided and planted 5,800 multi-flora rose to produce these living fences as a part of his plan.

Last year, the plan was well in operation and the production was paying off. Now Black has 22 cows averaging 9,000 pounds of milk production 12 to 18 head of young cattle and 250 to 400 chickens. His yields have increased to 82 bushels of corn and 4 tons on his alfalfa-grass meadows.

The five-year rotation of corn, soy beans, small grain and two years of alfalfa-grass meadow will be changed to corn small grain and three years of meadow when the dairy program will use the extra forage.

Paul Bangham, Soil Conservationist of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, worked with the Blacks and Alvin Barr of the FHA in establishing this plan.

IN THE SPRING of 1952, Chester Smith and his family moved to their rolling farm in the southern part of Clermont County from a flat farm in northwestern Ohio.

The two farms were extremely different, not only in topography, but in the soils as well.

The farm was in a very low state of production. Part of it was idle land and the remainder of eligible cropland had been in continuous corn and other row crops that had depleted the soil and exposed it to severe erosion damage.

Needing assistance in getting his farm program started in the right direction, Smith contacted the SCS technicians of the Clermont Soil Conservation District in July 1952. Since then, Smith has constructed 4,600 feet of terraces, with plans to terrace three more fields; has constructed 400 feet of sod waterways as terrace outlets, improved and reseeded 16 acres of permanent pasture; cultivated 15 acres of cropland on the contour; and has constructed one farm pond, with plans to construct two more. In addition, he has an adequate and going lime, fertilizer and soil-building program.

During the four years on the farm, Smith has increased his crop yields 100 percent or more. During 1954, the corn crop yielded about 80-85 bushels per acre. In 1955 the wheat crop yielded about 30 bushels per acre; the oats crop, 60 bushels per acre; and the legume-grass meadows, about 2½ tons per acre.

Smith says: "When you move from a flat farm to a rolling farm such as I now have, you have to make some quick changes in your

Lincoln Slaying Witness Dies At 96

BALTIMORE (AP)—Samuel James Seymour, believed the last surviving witness to the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, died today. He was 96.

Seymour, a carpenter and contractor who made his home in the Baltimore area, had been in failing health since February, when he fell in a New York City hotel just before appearing on a national television program honoring Lincoln's birthday. He died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Irene Hendley, in Arlington, Va.

Seymour said he recalled being in Ford's Theater as a child of five when John Wilkes Booth fired the fatal shot and leaped upon the stage.

Florida had a population gain of 19.1 percent between April 1, 1950 and July 1, 1954.

4-H Club Activities

STAR FASHIONETTES

The Bloomingburg Star Fashionettes 4-H club has postponed its bake sale from April 14 to April 21. Agreement for the change of date was made at a regular club meeting at the Bloomingburg school.

At the same meeting, a calendar committee was appointed to help lay plans for the club's forthcoming activities. Glenna Watkins is chairman, and members are Nancy Nessel, Janet McConaughy and Wanda Paul.

Members discussed baking projects at the meeting. Refreshments were served by Dorothy Fortier, Gloria Cleland and Wanda Paul.

CHAFFIN

Barry Warner and Carolyn Carr are on the constitution committee of the new Chaffin 4-H club. They were appointed at the second regular meeting of the brand-new unit.

A name for the club—the youngest in the County—will be selected at the next meeting, members agreed. Until then, it will remain the "Chaffin" 4-H club, after its meeting place.

The club practiced parliamentary procedure at their recent meeting, in order that they'll be off on the "right foot," and be able to run an orderly organization.

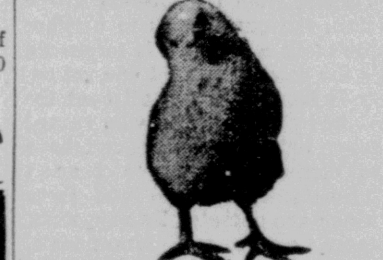

Barry Warner and Billy Yeoman served refreshments. Next meeting will be April 26, and Roy Boggs and Bob Penwell will serve refreshments.

A free dinner, the treat of Jesse Schlichter, was given to members of the Lucky Leaf Livestock 4-H club at Bailey's Restaurant on the CCC Highway near Mount Sterling.

Alfalfa Yields Cut By Lime Deficiency

One leading agronomist writes: "Lime is an old story but there is something new for 1956 and future years. Acid soil without a doubt limits the production of all forages, but especially the new Marra-gansett and DuPuits alfalfa more than any other factor. Acid soil makes farmers disappointed with the fertilizer they buy. Research and farm trials show that many farmers can grow alfalfa provided they lime as needed, fertilize right and choose the best variety. Lack of lime will be the main cause for limiting acreage of better legumes in 1956."

The use of fertilizers and alfalfa seed continues to increase every year with the exception of a slight decline in 1955 for fertilizer, but the use of lime has declined nationally from over 50 million tons in 1947 to less than 19 million tons in 1954, a drop of nearly 40 percent in a period of eight years. Soil tests made in every state in the humid area indicate that a high percentage of the soils need lime to obtain the best yield of any crop and a majority of them need it to grow legumes. Applications of 2 tons per acre are usual and 4 or more tons not unusual, particularly on clay loam soils. For sandy soils the lime requirement is somewhat lower.

Ohio Milk Price Parley Due April 20

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department announced today a hearing will be held in Columbus Friday, April 20 to consider possible increases in producer prices of milk sold under federal marketing orders in Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia.

The hearing was called at the request of producer groups and distributors. They claim that moderation of seasonal price declines is necessary.

Market areas involved include: Ohio — Toledo, Akron, Canton, Springfield, Cincinnati, the Ohio Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, River Valley markets and Lima; Indiana—Fort Wayne; and West Virginia — Clarksburg and Great-er Wheeling.

Under government programs, the producer-prices for milk decline in the spring season of heavy production. Producer groups contend that in this instance the declines are too drastic in view of milk production costs.

The hearing will open at 10 a.m. in the main ballroom of the Southern Hotel.

Rep. Bow (R-Ohio) said yesterday the hearing would open next Thursday. He said today the date had been changed.

Are We Becoming A Nation Of Transients?

Has the average person in this city or county ever given thought to the idea that this country is a restless nation?

Not only the changes of residence, people leaving and new families coming in become noticeable in Washington C. H. and elsewhere in Fayette County, but every year literally millions of American families move from one part of their communities to another, or from city, county or state to another.

It is declared by competent observers that thousands each year traverse the country to set up housekeeping. Maybe this characteristic reflects some special Yankee trait, for it is said that in no other nation do geographical loyalties, or fondness for one's place of birth, mean so little as in the United States.

Of course there are many Americans who have decided preferences for some particular part of the country or for some special locality, but the desire to move where there may be better paying jobs or where climate is thought to be more pleasing, has more over-powering influence than allegiance to any certain region.

Very recently the U. S. News and World Report presented a forecast on the future distribution of our nation's population.

According to the magazine there will be more than 227 million Americans in 20 years, and most will be congregated in coastal and Great Lakes states. The "big" state, as one might suppose, will likely be California, which is expected to continue its spectacular growth, reaching 36,000,000 (nearly 5,000,000 more than New York) by 1975. Florida, too, will boom, doubling its population to 6,000,000, though the heaviest concentration of people will be in the Western arc of states curving north from New Mexico along the Pacific Coast to Washington. The Great Lakes community, led by Ohio, will also experience a sizable growth. Ohio's population may swell to half again its present size, climbing to 12,000,000 in the next two decades, followed in order by Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, and Wisconsin.

In every instance, the projected population figures reflect the economic potential of the states. A secondary attraction is climate. But pleasant weather is only a contributing factor, else there would be almost uniform growth in all states in a single climatic sector. The major attraction for people selecting an area in which to settle are the kind of work and the salaries offered in that area.

This is only natural, perhaps; Americans have always responded to the promise of good jobs, or more land, or the chance to mine precious minerals in a distant part of the nation. But it seems now that a greater proportion of Americans are participating in the roving quest for improved economic conditions. To many, the ideal farm land such as Fayette County possesses, is a superior attraction.

In the over-all picture we are becoming a nation of transients, of huge cities which look increasingly alike, as once-regional tastes and cultural interests are merged in the massive population centers. We are, in short, becoming a nation demanding ever more standardization, so that wherever we go we shall feel "at home."

The Victor Riesel Tragedy

By George Sokolsky

Victor Riesel selected as his particular field of journalism the improprieties in labor unions. He selected this field because from the earliest childhood he has been close to the labor movement. It can be said that the labor movement is his faith and he wanted it clean and unpoluted. His father had been a labor union organizer in the garment industry and had been beaten up by racketeers and died of it. Riesel's hatred for racketeers became a feud, a battle to the death. They, the racketeers, got him by throwing sulphuric acid into his eyes.

Victor Riesel is my friend and the amazing fact is that he is capable of friendship despite vast differences of view, so that his spectrum of friendship is extraordinarily wide and therefore he could tap many faucets for data about what was happening in the world. Never a pessimist, always over-trustful, he took no measures to protect himself from retaliation by the racketeers whom he denounced and attacked both in his column and during his occasional appearances on radio and television. His opposition to racketeering, for he concerned himself less about philosophic problems than the techniques and tactics of operations. He told me as often as I saw him during the past year that a combination of the communists and racketeers in trade unionism was a peril of the first order to our larger cities.

The attack on him could not have been the result of some radio address he delivered two or three hours before a goon threw acid into his eyes. It must have been ordered and planned long in advance and his habits studied. Those who do not live in New York may wonder at the hour 3 A. M., at which it occurred. But here that is not an unusual hour for either those who work or who play. Life here moves around the clock and 3 A. M. at Lindy's is the supper hour for others. Many columnists pick up the wisps of information upon which they peg their stories at such hours and in such places in New York.

The problem, of course, is pricing and there does not seem to be enough money and men to police New York adequately. The mobs gain in authority as the police lose in authority. At this moment, the city has an unusually competent Police Commissioner Stephen Kennedy, but it has not always been so, and whenever Kennedy asks for a larger force to meet the problems of 8,000,000 people, crowded into a tight area, the politicians run to cover because it means cutting frill and fancies out of the budget particularly relief money.

The Riesel tragedy makes this clear. That it has been possible for a goon to throw sulphuric acid at a citizen's face and possibly to blind him permanently on a well-lighted street in the very center of the city as he left one of the best-known restaurants where large numbers of persons are present at all hours of the day and night. The street was unpolluted. It was 40 minutes before Riesel received any kind of treatment and the acid had its play.

Apart from the interest in the man, the question as to whether the mobs or the law is to prevail is the most important one not only in New York but all over the United States. Those who regard labor unions as sacrosanct have to distinguish between honest American-run unions and those which are operated by gangsters, racketeers and communists. Many labor leaders send telegrams of regret at what happened to Victor Riesel, but it would be more important if they showed their own courage and cleaned their own houses. Are the decent leaders afraid that the racketeers will throw sulphuric acid in their faces? In New York, when Gurrah and Lepke flourished and when Murder, Inc. was a business, the principal operations were in labor unions where they maintained discipline by slaughtering the opposition to highly respected personalities who must have hired them, because these fellows never killed for free. Are we to have a return of that?

It was because Victor Riesel asked that question and because he answered it affirmatively, pointing to some details, that sulphuric acid was hurled at his eyes.

Careless Mothers May Cause Accidents

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

None of us would deliberately harm our young children. Oh, maybe we give them a whipping now and then when they deserve it, but we don't mean to injure them.

Yet, simple thoughtlessness or carelessness might result in a serious accident that easily could have been avoided.

Cigarette Ash

For instance, put out that cigarette while you're feeding or changing the baby. Unfortunately, some mothers keep right on smoking when performing these chores. As a result, many a tiny totke suffers an eye injury from hot ashes.

Get rid of any death trap which might be lying about in your basement, attic or garage. If you must keep that old trunk for storage, make sure that it's kept securely locked. And if you insist on keeping airtight packing crates or boxes, bore a few holes in them to let in the air just in case.

Great Convenience

Your telephone is a great convenience and during an emergency it may be a lifesaver. But think while you use it. Don't, for example, drop everything and rush to the phone the moment it rings. Make sure the little toddler is not likely to get into any danger while you're talking.

By the same token, be considerate when making phone calls to another mother. Find out if he fore you start any long-winded conversation.

While we're speaking of telephones, we suggest you teach your youngsters how to make an emergency call to the operator just in case something should happen to you.

Playing Outdoors

The weather is getting nicer in most sections of the country now and your children are going to be playing outdoors more often. Make sure they are not wearing loose clothing that could catch on trees or playground equipment and cause a nasty tumble. And keep their shoes in good repair, even though it's going to be quite a job.

In Safety Harnesses

As for the small fry in safety harnesses, don't forget that there may be two to three feet of play in the leash. While he may be perfectly safe standing beside you, he might easily dart into the path of danger in that three feet or so before the leash checks his plunge.

You've probably thought of all of these things before. But a few reminders never hurt.

'Fan-Feria' Welcomes Spring In Glamorous, Colorful Spring

En route to the Feria, Spanish beaux and their best girls ride in grand style. Note the girls' full-skirted finery, flowery and fluffy, and the boys' snappy flat-crowned Cordoba hats.

By BERNICE GOETZ

NO MINCING STEPS mark the coming of spring to southern Spain. The famed 'Feria' of Seville acknowledges her for the gypsy she is in that country when it opens on April 18 with a crackle of castanets.

The last shred of timorous springtime is cast aside when the haughty beauties of Andalusia appear in the streets in costumes of Flamboyant hues.

From April 18 to 22, Seville celebrates the fair with that distinctive Andalusian gaiety that never lags, day or night. The measured pace of business transacted at sidewalk cafes by the large land-owners of that province is interrupted for the week.

In 1848, this annual event started as a cattle fair. Today it is unequalled anywhere in Europe for picture-book pageantry. American tourists, grown skeptical of travel ads, blink their eyes at its romantic reality.

The modern Feria also opens the bullfight season in Spain with tonight's matadors and famous breeds of bulls fighting each day in the Seville ring.

THE FAIR ITSELF is a quadruple avenue bordered with pavilions open to the streets in the fashion of the cattle dealers' tents of another century. No cars are allowed on the four avenues reserved only for carriages and horseback riders.

At noon, everyone in the city able to ride or walk starts for the fairgrounds. The young women wear the gypsy garb of Andalusia. For weeks, dressmakers have been working on yards of crinoline, gaudy and cotton.

The typical dress is made of red or blue cotton printed with con-shaped dots, has puffed sleeves and tiers of ruffles on a flounced skirt that touches the sidewalk. The seniorita walks bareheaded with a fringed scarf at her neck, black hair piled high and the traditional flower pinned behind her ear.

Little girls of three or four, even babes in arms, are dressed as exact replicas of their big sisters.

AS THEY stream past a somber building behind an iron fence on their way to the fairgrounds, few of this Twentieth Century crop of potential Carmens are impressed by the tobacco factory where it is said the plot of the original opera evolved.

If they can possibly afford it, the young caballeros will rent, borrow or beg a horse before they will walk. The clatter of hooves on trolley tracks betokens traffic of a different kind bound for the promenade—one-horse shays, imposing six-in-hands with liveried coachmen, muleteams jangling with bells and solemn grooms riding behind are ablaze with the colors of their owners.

The pillion riders, however, catch the breath of the onlookers. The classic cut of the man's suit with tight trousers, bolero jacket, chaps of fine-tooled leather and huge Andalusian stirrup-leaves sets off the narrow waist and firm seat emphasized by an arm held akimbo.

The girl is perched precariously on the crupper. She rides with amazing grace, an arm lightly held around her partner's waist, the other holding onto the crupper.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Friday the 13th had luck couldn't be dodged by Reece B. Baldwin, 40, when he appeared in Long Beach municipal court to answer a drunk driving charge.

When Baldwin appeared in court yesterday his luck was still bad. He was fined $400 and lost his driver's license for a year.

New Division Of Sales Tax Being Urged

(By The Associated Press)

If sales tax proceeds were reallocated, "the aggravated and unpopular (city) payroll taxes" would be unneeded, Cleveland Municipal Judge John E. Sweeney, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, declared Thursday night.

Earlier another candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Robert W. Reider of Port Clinton, told members of the Fostoria Industrial Council that "every wage-earner in Ohio should be concerned with the revival of the Democratic party."

A third Democratic candidate for governor, Oscar L. Fleckner of Columbus, issued a statement calling for a "long-range master plan" for the state.

Sweeney told a banquet of the Cuyahoga County Italian Democratic League that his program could be "summed up in two short phrases—bold action and common sense."

He assailed what he termed diversion of funds from the state sales tax and said that if the tax proceeds were reallocated "there would be no need for the aggravated and unpopular (city) payroll taxes."

Reider told his Fostoria audience: "Organized labor cannot afford a one-party system. Whether your political faith is Republican or Democrat does not matter. As representatives of the wage-earners of the state your responsibility includes the continuing threat of repressive legislation aimed at the collective bargaining structures you have built up over the years."

Fleckner's statement said he "strongly urged establishment of a master plan that would embrace long-range highway, public works, natural resources, state hospital and building construction, coordination of planning with communities and all other phases of development of the state."

Benson Plans No Sulking If Ike OKs Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson says he does not plan to resign should President Eisenhower sign the controversial farm bill.

Benson, who has termed the bill unacceptable, declared:

"I don't make it a practice to go into a corner and sulk when things don't go to my liking."

Meanwhile, the National Farmers Union sent a telegram to the vacationing Eisenhower urging that he sign the bill.

"While you are golfing in Augusta, after the ninth hole of your game, we hope you will pause and give some consideration to the American family farmer," James G. Patton, president of the organization, wired Eisenhower.

Asked for comment, James Hagerty, the President's press secretary, replied he never would have any comment "on any such telegram" as Patton's.

The National Grange also called for approval of the bill, but the American Farm Bureau Federation favors a veto.

Signing the bill, the federation said, would mean "a return to the discredited programs that contributed much to the present glutted market situation."

Some In Jordan Urging Use Of 'Fire And Iron' On Jews

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
JERUSALEM, Jordan Sector (AP) — Here on the edge of the volcano there is an unnatural calm like the hll before the summer storm.

"Israel has humiliated the Arabs again," leading Arabs are saying, "but we must wait. We are not strong enough yet."

There is clearly a feeling among leading Jordanians that time is running out for Israel.

"Why did they attack in the Gaza strip?" one Arab leader asked me. "It was because Israel is desperate. She knows we are getting stronger every day. She must provoke us to action that will bring western intervention and freeze the status quo so she will be safe. But we will not fall for this trick."

Yet the situation here is full of danger. Passions among the half million Arab refugees in Jordan run higher with each report of an Israeli attack.

This confused little nation has position is linked up with its future. That is why pressures bear down so heavily on the shoulders of the young King Hussein who would rather think about dual careers, jet planes and thrills than politics. But the threat to Hussein's throne is implicit in today's situation.

Jordan has become the prize of the political tug of war between Egypt's Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser and Iraq's Premier Nuri Said.

Since the September Czech arms deal, Nasser has been the hero here. Suddenly overnight, there was a drop in his stock among the refugees — who are a powerful political force in this country. Palestinians were killed in the latest attacks and there was wrath among fellow Palestinian refugees here. They are asking loudly why Nasser is not using his shiny new Communist arms.

Jordan today has a million and half people. A third of these are refugees from Israel. Another third are of that part of Palestine annexed by Jordanian King Abdullah in the Arab-Israeli War and what was the poorest part of Palestine became the richest part of Jordan. The rest are "East Bank" Transjordanians of whom three quarters are nomad Bedouins whose manners, customs and way of life are virtually unchanged from Bible times.

From a nation which was hardly more than an unshakable Arab aircraft carrier in the Middle East it is developing into a country with a split personality. It is under terrific pressure from other Arab states to break all ties with Britain and the West.

Today this kingdom—independent on Britain for its economic and military survival—typifies the ferment of the whole Arab world.

Young Hussein considers he has a mission. It is an almost impossible mission. He still hopes he can help lay the foundation of Arab unity in this part of the world, and is making earnest gestures toward Syria. But circumstances are against him.

The price for even a semblance of unity with the Syrians and Egyptians is to break with Britain. Hussein is western-oriented and educated.

Britain is connected with the Baghdad Pact. Jordan is linked in a pact with Iraq — thus Jordan will ally with a link with the Baghdad Treaty, the target of immense propaganda by the Egypt-Saudi Arabian-Syria bloc. And the seething Palestine situation adds up to even more trouble.

The influence of Egypt's Nasser complicates the situation here. He has been a hero since the arms deal. Informed opinion here is that Israeli attacks are aimed at calling Nasser's bluff and shooting him off his white horse as Arab liberator.

Trimming Nasser down will not help Hussein. It is bound to breed disillusionment and anger among Palestinian refugees. The danger to the West here lies in the Nuri-Nasser struggle for Jordan. If Cairo wins and Jordan becomes "liberated," Iraq will be isolated and her position will deteriorate in the Arab world. Iraq is no stronger than 68-year old Nuri, whose health is beginning to fade. It is unlikely Iraq would long withstand the terrific

Mrs. Feagans Is Hostess To Garden Club

Springtime is a busy time for both gardeners and garden clubs. And the Friday afternoon meeting of the Fayette Garden Club was filled with spring garden hints, reports on flower shows attended and those scheduled for the next few weeks, also plans for an all-day garden tour next month, plus a considerable amount of conversation about the progress of the individual member's garden at home.

The club met at the home of Mrs. Jess Feagans with thirty-two members and four guests present for the business meeting and program which followed.

The principal item of business was final plans for the club's tour to Kingwood Gardens at Mansfield on Friday, May 11th. A chartered bus will take the members to this outstanding horticultural display; a conducted tour of the extensive grounds will be taken and ample time given for the visitors to spend at special points of interest on the 40-acre estate.

Reservations were taken and tickets sold for this trip at the meeting, with a limited number of seats still available to other gardeners who might wish to make the tour. For further information on the Kingwood Garden trip, contact the chairman Mrs. P. C. Harlow.

Mrs. C. S. Kelley and Mrs. Gladys Keller gave a most interesting report on their recent conducted tour of the major flower shows at Philadelphia and New York City.

In their reports, they described the historical sites seen in Philadelphia as well as the beautifully landscaped gardens and other displays shown at the Philadelphia show.

Outstanding floral arrangements, tropical gardens and lavish display of orchids were some of the highlights of the huge flower show in New York City and while there, they also visited many of the other top tourist attractions such as the U. N. Building, Rockefeller Center, and Broadway shows.

"The Care of Peonies in the Spring" as outlined by Mrs. Maryon Mark brought out first, that the new plants just coming through the ground now are very tender, and care should be taken to see that they are not damaged when the garden work, such as raking, is being done.

Later on when the peony bush is about to bloom, the small side buds should be pinched off so as to make for larger blooms. Ants, which are often seen on the peony blossoms, do not damage them as they are merely attracted by the sweet substance on the flower. The blooms can be washed off with a fine spray of water to eliminate the ants. Mrs. Mark also suggested that the peony bushes be cultivated by hand throughout the summer months to keep the ground from packing hard around the plants.

"Good home gardens just don't happen" Mrs. Earl Grim said in her talk titled "April Reminders". "They are the result of careful planning ahead of time" she said and now is the right time to plant, cool weather, hardy vegetables and annuals. In the vegetable list will be found: carrots, peas, radishes, leaf lettuce and onions; and in the flower list are larkspur, California and shirley poppies, calendula, ragged robins to name must a few.

Timeliness is very important to the best success in gardening and this timeliness depends upon both the weather and the condition of the soil and never spade or cultivate soil until it crumbles in your hand.

Mrs. Ernest Wilson and Mrs. Ralph Sessler, all of the Highland and Sabina communities.

Roses can be trimmed now and mulch should be removed carefully so as to not break the new shoots coming up and the first spray or dust for roses is due now.

Members were also reminded by club president, Mrs. Ansel Kirkpatrick, of many upcoming flower shows, tours and district meetings during April and May.

Beautiful arrangements of spring flowers and magnolias were displayed by arrangements of spring flowers and magnolias were displayed by Mrs. Wash Lough and Mrs. Ralph Penn.

Assisting the hostess during the serving of refreshments were: Mrs. Ralph Penn, Mrs. A. S. Stemler, Mrs. John Weade and Mrs. P. C. Harlow.

Mrs. Feagans Is Hostess To Garden Club

Springtime is a busy time for both gardeners and garden clubs. And the Friday afternoon meeting of the Fayette Garden Club was filled with spring garden hints, reports on flower shows attended and those scheduled for the next few weeks, also plans for an all-day garden tour next month, plus a considerable amount of conversation about the progress of the individual member's garden at home.

The club met at the home of Mrs. Jess Feagans with thirty-two members and four guests present for the business meeting and program which followed.

The principal item of business was final plans for the club's tour to Kingwood Gardens at Mansfield on Friday, May 11th. A chartered bus will take the members to this outstanding horticultural display; a conducted tour of the extensive grounds will be taken and ample time given for the visitors to spend at special points of interest on the 40-acre estate.

Reservations were taken and tickets sold for this trip at the meeting, with a limited number of seats still available to other gardeners who might wish to make the tour. For further information on the Kingwood Garden trip, contact the chairman Mrs. P. C. Harlow.

Mrs. C. S. Kelley and Mrs. Gladys Keller gave a most interesting report on their recent conducted tour of the major flower shows at Philadelphia and New York City.

In their reports, they described the historical sites seen in Philadelphia as well as the beautifully landscaped gardens and other displays shown at the Philadelphia show.

Outstanding floral arrangements, tropical gardens and lavish display of orchids were some of the highlights of the huge flower show in New York City and while there, they also visited many of the other top tourist attractions such as the U. N. Building, Rockefeller Center, and Broadway shows.

"The Care of Peonies in the Spring" as outlined by Mrs. Maryon Mark brought out first, that the new plants just coming through the ground now are very tender, and care should be taken to see that they are not damaged when other garden work, such as raking, is being done.

Later on when the peony bush is about to bloom, the small side buds should be pinched off so as to make for larger blooms. Anits, which are often seen on the peony blossoms, do not damage them as they are merely attracted by the sweet substance on the flower. The blossoms can be washed off with a fine spray of water to eliminate the ants. Mrs. Mark also suggested that the peony bushes be cultivated by hand throughout the summer months to keep the ground from packing hard around the plants.

"Good home gardens just don't happen" Mrs. Earl Grim said in her talk titled "April Reminders". "They are the result of careful planning ahead of time" she said and now is the right time to plant, cool weather, hardy vegetables and annuals. In the vegetable list will be found: carrots, peas, radishes, leaf lettuce and onions; and in the flower list are larkspur, California and Shirley poppies, calendula, ragged robins to name just a few.

Timeliness is very important to the best success in gardening and this timeliness depends upon both the weather and the condition of the soil and never spade or cultivate soil until it crumbles in your hand.

Roses can be trimmed now and mulch should be removed carefully so as to not break the new shoots coming up and the first spray or dust for roses is due now.

Members were also reminded by club president, Mrs. Ansel Kirkpatrick, of many upcoming flower shows, tours and district meetings during April and May.

Beautiful arrangements of spring flowers and magnolias were displayed by arrangements of spring flowers and magnolias were displayed by Mrs. Wash Lough and Mrs. Ralph Penn.

Assisting the hostess during the serving of refreshments were Mrs. Ralph Penn, Mrs. A. S. Stenler, Mrs. John Weade and Mrs. P. C. Harlow.

County Meeting Of WCTU Held At Edwards Home

The Fayette County W.C.T.U. Institute was held at the home of the County President, Mrs. Leafy Edwards in Bloomington.

Mrs. Eben Thomas, chairman of the program, called the meeting to order at 10:30, and the members sang "America" with Mrs. Jackson on the piano.

Devotions given by Mrs. Emma Smeltzer included Scripture reading from the Book of Mark, for the subject "Resurrection", and closed with prayer.

The salute to the flag was led by Mrs. Thomas and the motto for the year of 1956, for the W.C.T.U. are two words, "Watch-Watch".

The program for the W.C.T.U. Guide was given by Mrs. Eben Thomas.

A report of the W.C.T.U. Workshop, held in Columbus, April 4, 5 and 6 was given by the County President, Mrs. Leafy Edwards who announced the next meeting will be in Springfield.

Noon-Tide Prayer was given by Mrs. Frank Haines and the ladies were invited to the dining room where all enjoyed a delicious covered dish luncheon and pretty spring flowers were in evidence throughout the home.

The after-noon session opened with singing the "Crusade Hymn" with Mrs. Frank Creamer at the piano and prayer by Mrs. Edwards.

Scripture, 23rd Psalm, was read in unison and two poems, entitled, "Daffodils" and "Spring", were read by Mrs. Thomas.

Two vocal solos, entitled "He" and "The Love of God", were presented by Mrs. Frank Creamer, song in unison, "This is My Fathers World".

The speaker for the afternoon was Rev. Rickett of the Methodist Church, in Bloomington.

The meeting closed with the W.C.T.U. Benediction.

Spring Grove WSCS Entertains At Special Event

Members of the Spring Grove WSCS entertained at a visitation meeting at the church and included members of societies of Grace Methodist, Jeffersonville Methodist as well as those of the Spring Grove Circuit.

The program was opened with a cordial welcome to the guests by the president, Mrs. Willard Sears.

Mrs. Willis Cartwright led in the devotions and Mrs. Reuben French was followed with a vocal solo "I Believe" by Miss Karen Carman accompanied by Mrs. Marlin Kessler.

Mrs. Sears presented as guest speakers Mrs. Cleo Wiscup, District WSCS Treasurer and Mrs. Esther Reynolds. Also an officer in the district, both of Cedarville as guest speakers.

Mrs. Wiscup talked on stewardship and discipleship and Mrs. Reynolds told of the progress made in the fifteen years of the existence of the WSCS.

The speakers showed slides of the methods of teaching adults to read in foreign countries and the program closed with the singing of a hymn and the praying of the Lord's Prayer.

At social hour refreshments were served from a tea table centered with an arrangement of sweet peas with Mrs. Fred Barker presiding over the punch bowl.

Mrs. Reuben French was chairman of the decoration committee and Mrs. Fred Barker and Mrs. Marlin Sanderson were in charge of the tea table.

Elmwood Aid Members Hold Regular Meeting

Mrs. Foster Wikle, president, conducted the regular meeting of the Elmwood Ladies Aid, held at the home of Mrs. Virginia Zimmerman.

The singing of a hymn was followed with devotion led by Mrs. Margaret Watts, who read Scripture from the Book of John, a poem and offered prayer.

Roll call was responded to by twenty-three members and the usual reports were followed with special reports including 56 calls made during the past month by members.

Members having birthdays in the past month were honored with the singing of "Happy Birthday" and the singing of a hymn was followed with the closing benediction.

Mrs. Trox Farrell was in charge of the program conducting an interesting contest and she also read a poem.

During the social hour Mrs. Zimmerman was assisted by Mrs. Trox Farrell, Mrs. Jesse Taylor, Mrs. Margaret Watts and Mrs. Clara Carr in the serving of refreshments.

Firemen Here Cook Own Meals Now while On Duty

Cozy Kitchen Corner Set Up Near Equipment

Memo to the ladies: Don't look now, but right in the center of Washington C. H., a gang of burly males is preparing to threaten your supremacy at the cookstove.

Who are they? They're none other than the city's strong and strapping firemen—no joke. These masters-at-turning-back blazes are slowly but surely becoming—well, almost becoming—masters—at turning out delicate custard puddings.

The firemen have a kitchen all their own huddled right in the back of the fire station, between the new pump truck and the hook and ladder equipment. Sparkingly decked out in all modern equipment, the kitchen is all that the well-fed hose handler could want to keep house in.

Firemen, of course, work a long, long day—from eight one morning until eight the next, according to the present schedule. This means that they've got to eat at least two full meals while on duty. Since the work week was cut from 72 to 56 hours, lunch and supper breaks have had to go, in order to keep the station full-staffed.

So, to make sure the city's fire protection didn't starve on the job, City Manager James F. Parkinson went out and bought a sink, stove, refrigerator, pots and pans and dishes—the works—to furnish kitchen for the men. They can eat their meals on the job now and get in shape to compete with their wives at the stove while they're at it.

The men, under the direction of Chief George Hall installed the equipment and made a cheery corner with all the comforts of home. Next time you pass the fire house and see smoke coming from a back window, think before you shout—it may only be a baked Alaska.

THE DEPARTMENT has had the kitchen for three months now, and everything has gone rather well during that time—which surprises the firemen as much as anybody. "Oh we've made our mistakes, sure," said Bill Smith, who is one of the cooks on the department staff, "but all in all, things have gone along OK."

He was hard at work preparing lunch for himself and Captain Ray Stephens, who says "If I cooked, there wouldn't be much fire fighting done." Smith is a tall, brawny young man and looks just like a fireman should. But he wielded his skillet with real professional know-how.

Pork and home-fried potatoes was the order of the day that noon, and "Smitty," as they call him, was going about his business just like a first-rate housewife. No mistakes, no fussing—just plain good cooking.

"He's a real good cook," Stephens asserted enthusiastically as he dug into Smitty's potatoes. "There are three or four good ones on the force—Marlin Overly cooks, and so does Maynard Denen," he said.

"Yeah, we've made our mistakes at times," Smitty recalled. "I cooked some chicken one night and you could turn the skillet upside down and it wouldn't fall out," he laughed.

"Someone else made some mashed potatoes once and forgot to pour off the water. You could drink them through a straw," Stephens recalled.

"But on the whole, it's been OK," Smitty said adding "we have not tried baking, but we've tried almost everything else, and gotten away with it."

"OH YOU'VE forgotten," Stephens interjected—"someone on one of the other shifts tried to bake a cake a few weeks back. Well, he should have started at the other end of the cook book and tried the hard ones later. It—uh—didn't turn out too well," he chuckled.

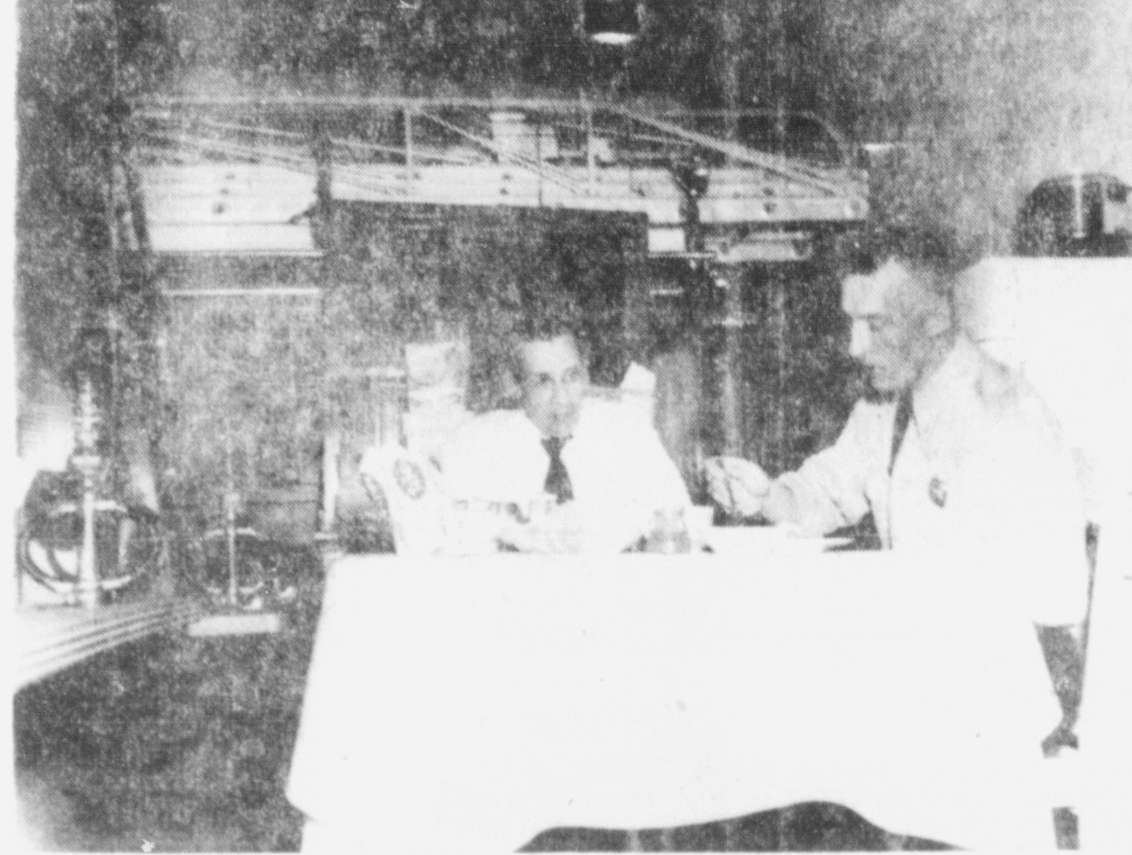

Except for baking, Smitty emphasized the men have tried about everything. They've cooked steaks and chickens and even venison and rabbit, when supplies happened to be on hand.

The trouble with baking a cake, Smitty said, is that he's only on one day out of three. The other two shifts might not eat any of it, and it would be stale by the third day.

Smitty, who said he and his brothers won numerous 4-H cooking ribbons when they were young, and that he certainly could bake a cake, but for that reason he hasn't.

"How about taking it home to the wife?"

Smitty burst out laughing. "Are you kidding? Buddy, if it were any good at all—why that's grounds for divorce!"

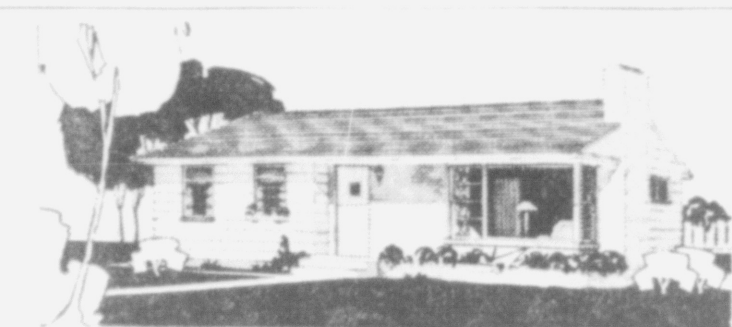

Men being men, of course, there comes a time every few days when there's no one in the fire house who feels like cooking. That works out all right, too, for there's a restaurant almost next door, and all they have to do is shout their order out the door and have it delivered.

But usually, the chef's life is a happy one for the idle fireman. Smitty said it had even improved his cooking a good deal. He says he really enjoys doing it, especially when he gets compliments and that it's always fun to learn. He's learning enough, he says, so it's likely to keep him busy till next summer.

And by that time—who knows—he may be ready for the County Fair.

New Bricker Plan Rapped By Senator

WASHINGTON (P)—Sen. Hennings (D-Mo.) accused backers of a revised Bricker Amendment today of attempting to demote the President and shift to Congress "prime responsibility."

His target was a substitute drafted by Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) for the constitutional amendment by Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) to limit treaty powers. The Dirksen version recently was approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee, 11-2, with two members not voting.

"I will have no part of the Dirksen substitute or any other version of the Bricker Amendment," Hennings said. He called it "down-right dangerous" and added:

"The Dirksen proposal would amend the Constitution to say that 'a provision of a treaty or other international agreement which conflicts with any provision of this Constitution shall not be of any force or effect.'"

Noting that backers of the Dirksen proposal have said one of their aims is to regulate executive agreements not subject to Senate approval, Hennings said:

"It is impossible to provide a constitutional restriction which will prevent agreements we may not like without also eliminating executive powers we know our government—any government—must have."

"We would be foolish to deprive our President of his historic position as the nation's leader in its relation with other countries."

Socialism Seen Targets Of Medics

CINCINNATI (P)—The secretary general manager of the American Medical Assn. declared today the major responsibility of the medical profession and the accident and insurance business is "developing and maintaining a strong, healthy economy—a free economy."

The statement was made by Dr. George F. Lull of Chicago who spoke at a meeting of the Health Insurance Assn. of America.

"Discouraging as it may be," said Dr. Lull, "the forces of socialism have not relinquished their efforts. Scattered reversals of the socializers and planners have only brought about changes in tactics. Divide and conquer, the oblique approach, piece-meal legislation, have if anything, made our job more difficult."

Hearing On New Ohio Liquor Permits Slated For May 15

COLUMBUS, Ohio (P)—The state board of liquor control has proposed new permanent regulations using 1956 population figures as a basis for the number of permits in each of 1,031 districts in Ohio.

Liquor Director William C. Bryant announced Thursday that public hearings on the proposed regulations will be held May 15—two weeks before expiration of emergency regulations a d o p t e d following a recent Ohio Supreme Court decision knocking out Ohio's seven-year-old freeze on issuance of new permits.

Under the old freeze regulation of 1949, the 1940 census figures were used to compute license allotments. The Supreme Court said this failed to take into consideration wide-spread population changes since 1949.

The proposed regulations would set up permit-population ratios similar to those now in effect under the emergency freeze. D-3, D-4, and D-5 permits, which allow the sale of hard liquor for on-the-premises consumption, would be issued on the basis of 1956 population, using the 1950 permit-population ratio as a guide.

Thus, if in 1950 a district had a population of 4,000 residents and one D-3 permit and in 1956 had 8,000 residents it would be entitled to one more D-3 permit.

Similar regulations were set up for D-1 and D-2 permits except that the population as of June 27,

Lake Central Aides Fight Against Loss Of Airline

INDIANAPOLIS (P)—Employees of Lake Central Airlines began a federal court fight Thursday to keep control of the company out of the hands of North Central Airlines.

Two years ago 166 Lake Central employees bought most of the airline's outstanding stock.

In the federal court suit, the employees said North Central had contracted on Oct. 17, 1952 to buy 80,054 of the 83,039 outstanding common shares but that it breached this contract.

The complaint said the contract was voided because North Central never paid for the stock.

The first witness, Hal C. Carr, president and general manager of North Central, testified that his firm had not offered to pay any of the purchase price for Lake Central stock.

High Mishap Rate Spots On Roads Cited By Official

COLUMBUS, Ohio (P)—The state department of highway safety says 35 per cent of highway accidents in Ohio outside cities last year were concentrated on 7 per cent of the 16,002 miles of rural highways.

Highway Safety Director U. C. Felty in a report issued Thursday said that one hazardous stretch of Ohio 120 between Toledo and the Wood county line in Lucas County had a rate of 77 accidents per mile in 1955.

Last year there were 88 accidents, 4 deaths and 38 injuries reported on this section, Felty said.

Other stretches of roadway with high accident rates were U. S. 25 between Reading and Evendale, Hamilton County, with 54 accidents per mile and U. S. 25 between West Carrollton and Kettering, Montgomery County with 50 accidents per mile.

Major League Tight Campaign Pilots Predict

Second Division Berths
Shunned As Managers
Voice High Optimism

NEW YORK (AP)—Major league managers, known for their peculiar optimism on the eve of pennant races, really out-did themselves today as they predicted the tightest races in history in both the American and National leagues and practically placed all second division berths out of bounds.

From Cleveland's Al Lopez, who declared "we have a great chance," to Pittsburgh's Bobby Bragan who promised "we'll escape the cellar," all managers were convinced their clubs will be stronger. Even super-cautious Walt Alston, the reticent skipper of the world champion Dodgers, went way out on the limb—for him—by saying:

"Our club will have a good chance to win the pennant—depending on the pitching."
Casey Stengel, who earlier had piled his club to win the American League pennant, was not as definite this time although he indicated he would be greatly surprised if a club other than his New York Yankees captured the flag.

Lopez conceded that the Yankees, as league champions, must be the team to beat but he added:

"The Red Sox, White Sox and Tigers, as well as ourselves, are improved and I see a race fully as close as last year. We have a great chance."

Other American League managers were almost as enthusiastic. Mike Higgins of Boston said, "even when we were losing a few games in Florida I was seeing things that convinced me we have also improved considerably—enough to make my hopes very high."

Marty Marion, who last year predicted his White Sox would win the pennant, didn't go that far out on the limb this time. He did say, however, that he was not conceding a thing to any other club.

Bucky Harris, Detroit manager, said:

"I realize it won't be easy to break into the first division but games than we did last year."

Lou Boudreau of Kansas City predicted the entire order of finish.

I feel certain we'll win more. "I would rank the teams in this order," he said, "Yanks, Red Sox, Indians, White Sox, Tigers, Athletics, Senators, Orioles."

Paul Richards of Baltimore also leaned toward the Yankees and named Boston, Chicago and Cleveland to "be right up there."

Charlie Dressen of Washington saw trouble for the Yankees "if Bob Turley doesn't come through." As for his Senators, he said "It's too open" to predict but "some of our pitchers are going to surprise them this year."

Alston expects a closer National League race than last year and bracketed the Braves, Giants and his Dodgers as the top three.

Billy Rigney, freshman Giant manager, insisted there will be no runaway this time.

"I think pitching will decide the pennant and I think the Giants have a good chance."

Charlie Grimm of Milwaukee said "If we could get full seasons out of our key players we should be right up there."

Birdie Tebbets was sure his Redlegs were stronger. "If the pitching comes through, we will be up there," Birdie said.

Stan Hack of Chicago also was confident his club was improved. "I rate the Cubs a good chance to finish in the first division," he said.

Bragan made a solid prediction his Pirates would escape the cellar. "We will get out of the cellar, I'm sure," he said.

Reddie Hootens of the Cards said he didn't know much about the other teams since he is new to the league but added, "I think we'll be a contender."

Boardman Hoping To Upset Saddler

BOSTON (AP)—Lightweight Larry Boardman thinks he's got the for round non-title fight tonight—battling him on the inside.

The Boston Garden contest pits the 29-year-old veteran Saddler, who has lost only 14 of 169 fights, against the youthful Boardman.

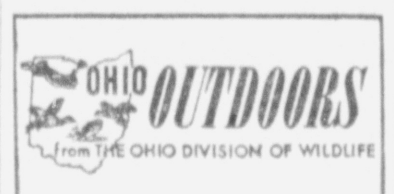

Saddler, possessing a record of 104 knockouts, is an 8-to-5 favorite.

Hillsboro Beats WHS 4-3 In Tight Contest

Hillsboro's Indians took the game into extra innings here Friday afternoon and left the Washington C. H. Lions on the short end of a 4-3 Friday the 13th baseball loss.

Hillsboro's swift-slinging pitcher Price struck out 18 Lions of the 35 Lions who faced him. He allowed eight walks, however.

Although they led during the opening innings of the game, the Lions could not stand up under the sustained late-inning attack. Several

With hay mowing and pheasant nesting occurring simultaneously here in Ohio, heavy losses of adult hen pheasants and young birds take place.

Wildlife officials point out, however, that the situation need not be so serious because something can be done by both the farmer and sportsman to reduce the game kill during this critical period. A flushing bar is the answer.

Division of Wildlife studies have shown that adult hen pheasant mortality has been reduced 45 percent; juvenile pheasant mortality reduced 70 percent and juvenile rabbit mortality reduced about 80 percent when a flushing bar was used.

The Division has about 200 flushing bars scattered throughout the state and farmers and sportsmen's organizations interested in the use of one of these bars should contact their game protector or nearest District Wildlife office.

Earl Averill Gets Contract In Cleveland

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Earl Averill, whose dad averaged well over 300 in hitting for 11 seasons with the Cleveland Indians up until 1939, has won a Tribe contract.

The 24-year-old catcher has hit four homers and well over 300 in exhibition games, and manager Al Lopez says his work "behind the plate" has improved 100 per cent.

Because young Averill has only three seasons of minor league experience, it was felt when training opened seven weeks ago that he would be farmed out before the opener. Now it appears he has the edge on Hank Foiles for third-string catcher.

The Tribe cut its roster to 22 yesterday by returning second baseman Larry Raines to Indianapolis, which owned his contract, and selling first baseman Joe Altobelli to Indianapolis.

Besides Averill, two other rookies earned places on the roster: southpaw Buddy Daley, 22, who won 18-16 with last-place Sacramento last year, and outfielder Rocky Colavito, who hit 28 home runs at Indianapolis in 1954 and 50 last season.

Colavito, who scored the winning run Thursday against the New York Giants at Indianapolis, scored the clincher again yesterday against Milwaukee. Both times he got on base with a double.

'Hurricane' Cries For Shot At Rock

WASHINGTON (AP)—Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson set up a new demand today for a heavyweight title bout with Rocky Marciano after his quick dispatch of Encilando's willing but overmatched Johnny Williams. Starting slowly but flailing away for two rounds, Jackson dropped Williams three times and won a technical knock-out at 2:49 of the fourth round.

"We want Marciano or anyone else if he won't fight," clamored Lou (Lippy) Bredbart, Jackson's manager and speechmaker.

Hoosiers Leading In Table Tennis

ATHENS (AP)—Indiana University teams dominated the National Intercollegiate table tennis tournament with one Hoosier team capturing the championship and another team placing third here last night.

The championship team of Ken Boggan, Gordon Barclay and Ben Baker defeated runnerup Upsala College, 5-1, in the round robin finals after whipping Dayton and the Indiana No. 2 team, both by 5-0. Dayton finished fourth.

Doubles and singles events were being played today.

Robin Roberts Now Ready To Shoot For 20-Win Year

(By The Associated Press)

Now it's official. Robin Roberts, who admits doing more "for the home run hitters than the lively ball or the laminated bat," is finally ready to shoot for his seventh straight season of 20 or more victories.

There was some nonsense about Robin, the Big One of the Philadelphia Phils' pitching staff, being "rarin'" to go after going nine innings and setting down the Boston Red Sox 2-1 last Tuesday. But Roberts was far from his old self—he had only given up two home runs in 33 exhibition innings.

That was away off pace for a guy who set a major league record last season by serving up 41 home run pitches.

It was the Red Sox, the same crowd who "proved" the "big right-hander ready earlier in the week, who came back to put Robin in right Friday.

They put the slug on him for four home runs and 10 hits in his five-inning "warmup" for an opening day assignment next Tuesday and coasted in with a 9-3 decision.

Pitcher, Bob Porterfield started the barrage with a three-run poke in the second inning. Then Ted Williams and Jackie Jensen whacked back-to-back wallops in the third. Milt Bolling sent Robin on his way with a two-run homer in the fifth.

The New York Yankees, who aren't underestimating the pennant potential supplied by Boston's power, underscored their homer threat by smacking three in a 17-7 rout of Pittsburgh. Yogi Berra, Mickey Mantle and Elston Howard tagged the blows against the Bucs.

Cleveland's Indians also won with power, beating the Milwaukee Braves 3-2 as Bobby Avila homered with a man on in a three-run first inning against Warren Spahn.

The Chicago White Sox finally ended their road-tour with the St. Louis Cardinals, and with no regrets. The Cards came from behind again to belt the Sox 7-5 and win the series 7-1.

A two-run Texas League single by Gail Harris broke up the ball game in the eighth and gave the New York Giants a 3-1 decision over the Senators at Washington.

Big Ted Kluszewski, hampered by a pulled hip muscle after hitting 47 homers last season, connected for his second home run of the spring for Cincinnati in a 6-1 victory over Indianapolis of the American Assn.

Scantlebury Looms Large In Cincinnati

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP)—Pat Scantlebury, a rookie at 21, looms large in the plans of the Cincinnati Redlegs this year.

The Redleg roster carries him as 31, but Bob Maduro, owner of the Havana club for which Pat won 13 games and lost 9 last year, says the lefthanders' passport pegs him at 37.

In any case, it doesn't faze Scantlebury, who said with a grin, "I'll be as old as anybody says as long as I can win games."

Yesterday was one of his winning days as he and Joe Black belted turn back the Indianapolis Indians 6-1. And Scantlebury is likely to see more action in the final two Redleg games with the American Assn. club.

A tough situation cropped up in yesterday's game when Red Graber drove Scantlebury's first pitch of the game into centerfield for a triple.

But the southpaw calmly retired the next three batters. The only Indian run came in the third when Graber singled to right field and Carroll Hardy quickly scored him on a single.

Black had the Indians hitless the last four innings.

The Redlegs journey to Indianapolis for today's second exhibition game in the three scheduled with the Indians, and Redleg manager Birdie Tebbets named Joe Nuxhall and Johnny Klippstein for pitching duty.

Yankee Rookie Norm Siebern Tagged New Tommy Henrich

NEW YORK (AP)—"Wait until you get a look at Norm Siebern in action. He'll remind you of an old Yankee favorite, Tommy (Old Reliable) Henrich."

So spoke Eddie Glennon, general manager of the Birmingham club in the Southern Assn. Eddie had Siebern in 1953 before Norm went into the army for a 2-year hitch.

Unfortunately, Yankee fans will have to wait a while before they can judge for themselves. The 22-year-old Siebern, whose spectacular spring training hitting established him as an almost certain sure shot to open the season in left field, still is sidelined by a knee injury from a crash into a fence in St. Petersburg, Fla.

"Siebern is the finest young player we ever had in Birmingham," Glennon said. "It's a tossup who was the better outfielder—he or Jimmy Piersall. We had Gus Triandos, Norm Zaichin, Karl Olson, Charlie Maxwell and George Wilson. But Siebern could be a better hitter than any of them. He'll fool you with his speed, too. He's a fine runner for a big fellow."

Siebern batted only .281 for Birmingham in 1953, but whalloped 21 home runs and drove in 89 runs.

"I'd rate Siebern another Henrich," Glennon said. "He's just the type for Yankee Stadium. He'll cut plenty of balls into those nearby right field seats. He's got everything including disposition and character."

Siebern made Eddie look good with his fine all-around play in the exhibitions before he got hurt. A long, lean lefthanded hitter, he batted over .300. Half of his 14 hits were made against lefthanded pitching.

Casey Stengel, Yankee manager, hasn't committed himself on whether Siebern will be the regular left fielder.

"He's got a chance to be a real major league ball player," Casey said. "He's a pretty good looking prospect. He can throw pretty good, can run pretty fast, and can hit pretty hard and can cover ground pretty good."

That's pretty good praise.

Major League Tight Campaign Pilots Predict

Second Division Berths
Shunned As Managers
Voice High Optimism

NEW YORK (AP)—Major league managers, known for their peculiar optimism on the eve of pennant races, really out-did themselves today as they predicted the tightest races in history in both the American and National leagues and practically placed all second division berths out of bounds.

From Cleveland's Al Lopez, who declared "we have a great chance," to Pittsburgh's Bobby Bragan who promised "we'll escape the cellar," all managers were convinced their clubs will be stronger. Even super-cautious Walt Alston, the reticent skipper of the world champion Dodgers, went way out on the limb—for him—by saying:

"Our club will have a good chance to win the pennant—depending on the pitching."

Casey Stengel, who earlier had pined his club to win the American League pennant, was not so definite this time although he indicated he would be greatly surprised if a club other than his New York Yankees captured the title.

Lopez conceded that the Yankees, as league champions, must be the team to beat but he added:

"The Red Sox, White Sox and Tigers, as well as ourselves, are improved and I see a race fully as close as last year's. We have a great chance."

Other American League managers were almost as enthusiastic. Mike Higgins of Boston said, "Even when we were losing a few games in Florida I was seeing things that convinced me we have also improved considerably—enough to make my hopes very high."

Marty Marion, who last year predicted his White Sox would win the pennant, didn't go that far out on the limb this time. He did say, however, that he was not conceding a thing to any other club.

Bucky Harris, Detroit manager, said:

"I realize it won't be easy to break into the first division but games than we did last year."

Lou Boudreau of Kansas City predicted the entire order of finish.

I feel certain we'll win more. "I would rank the teams in this order," he said, "Yankees, Red Sox, Indians, White Sox, Tigers, Athletics, Senators, Orioles."

Paul Richards of Baltimore also leaned toward the Yankees and named Boston, Chicago and Cleveland to "be right up there."

Charlie Dressen of Washington saw trouble for the Yankees "if Bob Turley doesn't come through." As for his Senators, he said "It's too open" to predict but "some of our pitchers are going to surprise them this year."

Alston expects a closer National League race than last year and bracketed the Braves, Giants and his Dodgers as the top three.

Billy Rigney, freshman Giant manager, insisted there will be no runaway this time.

"I think pitching will decide the pennant and I think the Giants have a good chance."

Charlie Grimm of Milwaukee said "If we could get full seasons out of our key players we should be right up there."

Birdie Tebbets was sure his Redlegs were stronger. "If the pitching comes through, we will be up there," Birdie said.

Stan Hack of Chicago also was confident his club was improved. "I rate the Cubs a good chance to finish in the first division," he said.

Bragan made a solid prediction his Pirates would escape the cellar. "We will get out of the cellar. I'm sure," he said.

Freddie Hutchinson of the Cards said he didn't know much about the other teams since he is new to the league but added, "I think we'll be a contender."

Boardman Hoping To Upset Saddler

BOSTON (AP)—Lightweight Larry Boardman thinks he's got the found non-title fight tonight—battling him on the inside.

The Boston Garden contest pits the 29-year-old veteran Saddler, who has lost only 14 of 169 fights, against the youthful Boardman.

Saddler, possessing a record of 104 knockouts, is an 8-to-5 favorite.

Hillsboro Beats WHS 4-3 In Tight Contest

Hillsboro's Indians took the game into extra innings here Friday afternoon and left the Washington C. H. Lions on the short end of a 4-3 Friday the 13th baseball loss.

Hillsboro's swift-slinging pitcher Price struck out 18 Lions of the 35 Lions who faced him. He allowed eight walks, however.

Although they led during the opening innings of the game, the Lions could not stand up under the sustained late-inning attack. Several costly errors aided the Hillsboro efforts.

First scoring in the game came in the top of the second when Kittrell, Hillsboro's heavy-hitting center fielder, slammed out a triple and came home on Frank Merri-man's error. The Indians led at the end of the frame, 1-0.

BUT IN the bottom of the second, the Lions jumped into the lead, where they stayed until the sixth inning. John Grooms, Ron Wilt and Fred Belles had all walked, loading the bases, when Campbell walked, driving Grooms home. With the bases loaded, an error by Hillsboro's second baseman Price sent Wilt home and put the Lions ahead, 2-1.

Another run was picked up by the Lions in the third when scrappy Dick Anders got on base with a walk, stole second, and came home when the Indian's third baseman bobbled a sharply-hit ball from Wilt's bat.

In the fourth, the Indians picked up another run when Reffett walked, stole second, and came home on an error by Frank Merri-man. Things didn't look dangerous, though, until Swissheim who had walked and stolen second, came home on Belles' error. The Indians had it all tied up, 3-3. Neither team could alter that situation by the bottom of the seventh, and the game went into the extra inning.

In the top of the eighth, the Indians got what they needed to win when Mallory was hit by a pitch, and went the rounds on four successive errors. The Lions couldn't score in the bottom of the eighth, so the Indians went home with the victory.

There was some nonsense about Robin, the Big One of the Philadelphia Phil's pitching staff, being rarin' to go after going nine innings and setting down the Boston Red Sox 2-1 last Tuesday. But Roberts was far from his old self—he had only given up two home runs in 33 exhibition innings.

That was away off pace for a guy who set a major league record last season by serving up 41 home run pitches.

It was the Red Sox, the same crowd who "proved" the big right-hander ready earlier in the week, who came back to put Robin in right Friday.

They put the slug on him for four home runs and 10 hits in his five-inning "warmup" for an opening day assignment next Tuesday and coasted in with a 9-3 decision.

Pitcher, Bob Porterfield started the barrage with a three-run poke in the second inning. Then Ted Williams and Jackie Jensen whacked back-to-back wallops in the third. Milt Bolling sent Robin on his way with a two-run homer in the fifth.

The New York Yankees, who aren't underestimating the pennant potential supplied by Boston's power, underscored their own homer threat by smacking three in a 17-7 rout of Pittsburgh Yogi Berra, Mickey Mantle and Elston Howard tagged the blows against the Bucs.

Cleveland's Indians also won with power, beating the Milwaukee Braves 3-2 as Bobby Avila homered with a man on in a three-run first inning against Warren Spahn.

The Chicago White Sox finally ended their road-tour with the St. Louis Cardinals, and with no regrets. The Cards came from behind again to belt the Sox 7-5 and win the series 7-1.

A two-run Texas League single by Gail Harris broke up the ball game in the eighth and gave the New York Giants a 3-1 decision over the Senators at Washington.

Big Ted Kluszewski, hampered by a pulled hip muscle after hitting 47 homers last season, connected for his second home run of the spring for Cincinnati in a 6-1 victory over Indianapolis of the American Assn.

Without Sam, who already has won here five times, this would be a wide-open scramble. Runner-up Doug Ford, at 140, has 11 men three shots or less back of him.

THE CHICAGO WHITE SOX FINALLY ended their road-tour with the St. Louis Cardinals, and with no regrets. The Cards came from behind again to belt the Sox 7-5 and win the series 7-1.

Robin Roberts Now Ready To Shoot For 20-Win Year

(By The Associated Press)

Now it's official. Robin Roberts, who admits doing more "for the home run hitters than the lively ball or the laminated bat," is finally ready to shoot for his seventh straight season of 20 or more victories.

Scantlebury Looms Large In Cincinnati

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP)—Pat Scantlebury, a rookie at 21, looms large in the plans of the Cincinnati Redlegs this year.

The Redleg roster carries him as 31, but Bob Maduro, owner of the Havana club for which Pat won 13 games and lost 9 last year, says the lefthanders' passport pegs him at 37.

In any case, it doesn't faze Scantlebury, who said with a grin, "I'll be as old as anybody says as long as I can win games."

Yesterday was one of his winning days as he and Joe Black helmed turn back the Indianapolis Indians 6-1. And Scantlebury is likely to see more action in the final two Redleg games with the American Assn. club.

A tough situation cropped up in yesterday's game when Red Graber drove Scantlebury's first pitch of the game into centerfield for a triple.

Lima Kids Find New Sport: Poking Into Cemetery Crypt

LIMA, Ohio (AP)—A grave-robbing episode that climaxed a series of trips by high school students to an old mausoleum was under investigation of police and juvenile authorities today.

Patrolman Earl Cox and juvenile officials have questioned 15 of 30 to 35 students, both boys and girls, reported to have made late afternoon and evening trips to the mausoleum in Woodlawn Cemetery, Hardin County.

Juvenile authorities said the students looked on the cemetery trips as a "lark," but Allen County Juvenile Judge Paul J. Roney said: "I don't think any of these kids understood or knew the gravity of the situation."

Officials questioning the students said they got this information about one of the trips to the cemetery.

Word spread among high school students about the unlocked mausoleum—the locks had been broken off some time previously. Various groups arranged visits to the cemetery.

On March 28, a group of 11 girls in two automobiles made the Hardin County trip. They found a small hole broken in one of the crypts. One girl took a piece of wood and expanded the hole. She reached inside and withdrew the arm of a body.

The girls all screamed, according to the story told to officials. But when they left they took with them a skeletal hand.

When they exhibited the hand at a drive-in restaurant, a hang-out for teenagers, word of the incident got to police, and the investigation started.

There was no indication what juvenile authorities would do in the matter. But officials of the cemetery said they did not want to file charges. Recently they authorized repairs on the mausoleum.

Boost In Steel Prices Sought

NEW YORK (AP)—Avery C. Adams, president of Pittsburgh Steel Co., has called for an increase of $12 to $15 a ton for steel. It was the latest in the series of similar statements by steel leaders.

Adams said the increase was needed to "bring the steel industry's return on investment to a level equal to that of leading companies in other industries and to help defray current inflated costs of expansion."

Adams was the first steel company official to specify the amount of a desired price increase. Other steel executives merely called for higher prices, giving similar reasons.

Daytonian Yields $1,491 To Plotter

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—A mysterious caller extorted $1,491 from the manager of a Dayton supermarket Thursday night by threatening the life of the manager's nine-year-old son, police reported.

Robert E. Bruns, 33, manager of the Liberal Supermarket told police a man phoned demanding that he put the store's money in a paper bag and place the bag in a trash can of a nearby school yard.

Bruns said as he left the store with the money he told a clerk to call the police. Police later searched the area, but the money was gone.

The boy, Michael, was safe at home.

Tattoo Reveals Correct Spelling

AMERICAN FALLS, Idaho (AP)—Tom Dille had no luck when he consulted his encyclopedia for the spelling of a Pacific island with a long name.

Underterred, he consulted Tom Jr., who'd been there with the Air Force.

The son peeled off his shirt and revealed this bold tattoo: "Kwajalein." Spelled right, too.

Disabling illness is nearly twice as frequent, January through March than July through August.

Lima Kids Find New Sport: Poking Into Cemetery Crypt

LIMA, Ohio (AP)—A grave-robbing episode that climaxed a series of trips by high school students to an old mausoleum under investigation of police and juvenile authorities today.

Patrolman Earl Cox and juvenile officials have questioned 15 of 30 to 35 students, both boys and girls, reported to have made late afternoon and evening trips to the mausoleum in Woodlawn Cemetery, Hardin County.

Juvenile authorities said the students looked on the cemetery trips as a "lark," but Allen County Juvenile Judge Paul J. Rockey said: "I don't think any of these kids understood or knew the gravity of the situation."

Officials questioning the students said they got this information about one of the trips to the cemetery.

Word spread among high school students about the unlocked mausoleum—the locks had been broken off some time previously. Various groups arranged visits to the cemetery.

On March 28, a group of 11 girls in two automobiles made the Hardin County trip. They found a small hole broken in one of the crypts. One girl took a piece of wood and expanded the hole. She reached inside and withdrew the arm of a body.

The girls all screamed, according to the story told to officials. But when they left they took with them a skeletonized hand.

When they exhibited the hand at a drive-in restaurant, a hang-out for teen-agers, word of the incident got to police, and the investigation started.

There was no indication what juvenile authorities would do in the matter. But officials of the cemetery said they did not want to file charges. Recently they authorized repairs on the mausoleum.

Boost In Steel Prices Sought

NEW YORK (AP)—Avery C. Adams, president of Pittsburgh Steel Co., has called for an increase of $12 to $15 a ton for steel. It was the latest in the series of similar statements by steel leaders.

Adams said the increase was needed to "bring the steel industry's return on investment to a level equal to that of leading companies in other industries and to help defray current inflated costs of expansion."

Adams was the first steel company official to specify the amount of a desired price increase. Other steel executives merely called for higher prices, giving similar reasons.

Daytonian Yields $1,491 To Plotter

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—A mysterious caller extorted $1,491 from the manager of a Dayton supermarket Thursday night by threatening the life of the manager's nine-year-old son, police reported.

Robert E. Bruns, 33, manager of the Liberal Supermarket told police a man phoned demanding that he put the store's money in a paper bag and place the bag in a trash can of a nearby school yard.

Bruns said as he left the store with the money he told a clerk to call the police. Police later searched the area, but the money was gone.

The boy, Michael, was safe at home.

Tattoo Reveals Correct Spelling

AMERICAN FALLS, Idaho (AP)—Tom Dille had no luck when he consulted his encyclopedia for the spelling of a Pacific island with a long name.

Underterred, he consulted Tom Jr., who'd been there with the Air Force.

The son peeled off his shirt and revealed this bold tattoo: "Kwajalein." Spelled right, too.

Chevrolet Corvette On Display Here Now

The new 1956 Chevrolet Corvette, now on display at the Brandenburg Motor Sales Co. on Clinton Avenue, has been attracting both the sports car fans and the curious.

The management explained that since the Corvette was first produced in limited volume, the suggestions and comments of the sports car enthusiasts, engineers and the general public have been noted for incorporation in the design of the new Corvette V-8.

Ideas of these people have been worked into what is publicized as the most spectacular development in the world of sports cars.

Some of the features pointed out are: power-operated fabric top that folds out of sight behind the seat; wider rear windows; greater side window visibility; optional power-glide or synchro-mesh transmission; modern 265 cubic inch V-8 engine and twin pipe exhaust.

The Brandenburg management insisted that "this is a true sports car, not a scaled down convertible."

A plastic hard top, which is available, features wrap-around rear window and may be installed with only three set screws.

It has a 102 inch wheelbase and is 168 inches long; the height (top down) is 49 inches and the road clearance is 6 inches with 70-inch wheels.

Judges Summoned To Appear Before Weygandt

Judge John P. Case, Judge Charles Kirk of Clinton County and Judge Paul P. Dull of Mercer County who presided in the disbarment proceedings against J. Harvey Crow at Urbana a year ago and barred Crow from further practice of law in Ohio, have been summoned for a hearing before Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt in Columbus, April 20, at 2:15 P. M.

The hearing is on an affidavit of prejudice filed by Harvey Crow against the three judges after the Court of Appeals had remanded the matter to the trial court with directions for findings of fact and conclusions of law.

The chief justice will decide whether there is any grounds for Crow's action in filing the affidavit of prejudice against the three trial judges.

First Meeting Of TB&H Board For New Year

Committee Chairmen
For 1956-57 Named—
Mt. Logan Invitation

The first meeting of the board of directors of the Fayette County Tuberculosis and Health Association, for the new fiscal year and presided over by the organization's new president, Charles Pensyl, was held in the offices of the association in the Pavey Building Friday night.

In addition to President Pensyl, others attending were: Mrs. Ned Abbott, Mrs. Frank Alexander, Mrs. J. A. Miller, Miss Mary Frances Snider, Clifford E. Hughes, Frank Grubbs, Dustin Gorton, Forest F. Tipton, Joseph Peters, Robert Tice, Dr. John Richards, and Mrs. Jan Geisenhof, executive secretary.

Annual reports and the budget for the new fiscal year were presented and approved and copies will be forwarded to state association office during the coming week.

During the business session two members were elected to serve on the executive committee of the association for three year terms. They were Mrs. Roy Wipert and Clyde Cramer.

Committee chairmen for 1956-57 were named as follows: program, Warren Brannon; rehabilitation, Miss Frances White; seal sale, Joseph Peters; education and publicity, Robert Angus; finances and budget, Robert Olinger.

It was announced that the annual meeting of the Ohio TB Association will be held at the Neil House in Columbus on May 10th and 11th. Representative Director Frank Grubbs will attend as Fayette County's representative. Several members of the County board of control are also planning to go, including the executive secretary, Mrs. Jan Geisenhof, who will participate in a panel on "Patient Management." Members of the Ohio Tuberculosis Society and the Ohio Conference of Tuberculosis Workers will take part in this.

An invitation was read for all board members to attend "Open House" at Mt. Logan Sanatorium, Chillicothe, on Sunday, May 13th, between the hours of 2:00 and 5:00 P. M. The new Outpatient Clinic, Occupational Therapy and Laboratory facilities will be dedicated at 3:00 P. M. The public is invited to attend this "Open House" and Fayette Countyans are urged to go. Several of the members present indicated their interest and intent to attend this event.

Fayette County people have an important "stake" in this institution since this is one of the six counties which supports Mt. Logan and pays taxes for its upkeep.

Chevrolet Corvette On Display Here Now

The new 1956 Chevrolet Corvette, now on display at the Brandenburg Motor Sales Co. on Clinton Avenue, has been attracting both the sports car fans and the curious.

The management explained that since the Corvette was first produced in limited volume, the suggestions and comments of the sports car enthusiasts, engineers and the general public have been noted for incorporation in the design of the new Corvette V-8.

Ideas of these people have been worked into what is publicized as the most spectacular development in the world of sports cars.

Some of the features pointed out are: power-operated fabric top that folds out of sight behind the seat; wider rear windows; greater side window visibility; optional power-glide or synchro-mesh transmission; modern 265 cubic inch V-8 engine and twin pipe exhaust.

The Brandenburg management insisted that "this is a true sports car, not a scaled down convertible. A plastic hard top, which is available, features wrap-around rear window and may be installed with only three set screws.

It has a 102-inch wheelbase and is 168 inches long; the height (top down) is 49 inches and the road clearance is 6 inches with 70-inch wheels.

Hobbyists Hold Unusual Session

Elaborate Supper
And Good Program

An exceptionally enjoyable session of the Fayette County Hobby Club was held Friday night at the city building by more than 30 members and guests.

In the absence of President Roscoe Whiteside at the beginning of the meeting, Vice-President Homer Harrison presided.

An elaborate carry-in supper was first enjoyed, after which a short business session was held.

There were numerous exhibits of unusual articles displayed and information given about them. An interesting program also was presented.

The unusual articles included fancy cushion, rug, Indian relics, old silver teaspoons, sea shell with the Lord's Prayer inscribed on it; two old shoe-shaped bottles, set of spurs over 100 years old, miniature milk glass lamp and small lantern, silver thimbles, religious booklet over 100 years old and art work in oil.

A bronze eagle from the staff of a flag given by the Junior Order of Good Hope and which was formerly owned by the Good Hope GAR Post was among the most unique pieces. It will be presented to the Fayette County Historical Society.

Following the exhibits, and it being Friday the 13th, many told of their superstitions. Others declared they were not superstitious but related some of the old beliefs which have largely vanished.

Mrs. Kenneth Coffey of near Greenfield entertained the members and guests with a series of comic readings and was roundly praised.

Mrs. Chester Cockerill of near Greenfield; Mrs. Mary Marshall of New Martinsburg and Mrs. Leora Graham, city, were additional guests.

Mrs. Madge Winter was named chairman of the committee on entertainment for the next meeting.
